Winnie's Pulse 'Irregular'

LONDON (AP) — A medical bulletin this afternoon said Sir Winston Churchill has developed "some irregularity of the pulse" at a hospital where he is recuperating from a thigh fracture.

This was the first indication of any setback in the 87-year-old former prime minister's recovery from his accident a week ago today.

The medical bulletin said, however, that "Sir Winston is comfortable and had a good night."

There is always some danger that men of his age and considerable weight will develop pneumonia or some other complication after broken bones.

Germany, France In Accord

PARIS (Reuters) — President de Gaulle and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said today they want to bring talks on a European political union to a conclusion as soon as possible "in agreement with their partners."

A communique issued after their three private meetings here during Adenauer's week-long visit said they agreed fully on German and Berlin questions and hoped Britain's application to enter the European Common Market would be solved "in a way that would strengthen the structure of Europe."

The communique said Adenauer's visit would "further the development of links between the nations of Europe and thereby strengthen the whole Atlantic alliance."

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Labor leaders agreed today to call off a paralyzing 24-hour general strike in support of President Joao Goulart in his struggle with Congress over the naming of a new premier and cabinet.

The four-million-member National Confederation of Industrial Workers ordered the strike Wednesday night. Business and transportation were paralyzed throughout the country. However, Goulart did not approve the strike and asked the labor leaders, during a conference in the capital of Brasilia to call it off. They agreed to issue orders this afternoon cutting short the walkout.

LONDON (AP) — Charlie Walther's anti-liquor crusade so peeved his fellow club members they laced his orange juice with a stiff shot of alcohol. That was how, a court was told Wednesday, Walther came to be nabbed drunk at the wheel of his car. Walther's lawyer said

Charlie's zealous anti-drink campaign had annoyed other members of a political club in suburban Sydney. One night when he temporarily left the clubroom someone poured booze into his cup of drink. The shot sent Walther to pieces, the lawyer said. The judge fined Walther 20 guineas ($58.80).

Doctors Spread 'Very Thinly'

(Times News Services)

SASKATOON — The emergency care situation in Saskatchewan is reaching a critical stage, Dr. Sam Landa, emergency co-ordinator for the Canadian Medical Association, said today.

He said available personnel now are being spread "very thinly" across the province.

As of Wednesday 204 doctors were providing emergency care, a drop of 36 from July 1 when doctors in the province went on strike against the government's compulsory medical care insurance plan.

Four doctors left North Battleford today and moved to Alberta to take permanent jobs. Dr. Landa said in an interview. However, he said doctors are still providing emergency care at 35 selected hospitals. But the number of hospitals providing emergency surgery has decreased since the start of the strike.

Dr. Regina, Dr. Clayton Cross, co-ordinator for the emergency doctor service, said the number of doctors has dropped to 30 from the original 38 assigned to the city's two major hospitals.

"I don't know if we will have enough men to carry on another week," he said.

Key Men Arrange to Leave

Dr. Crosby added that several key men were making arrangements to leave the city.

Dr. Neville Smith, acting as a spokesman for some Regina doctors, said the roster of eight anaesthetists is likely to be reduced by half by the weekend.

He said several have received job offers from other places.

Dr. Crosby said it may be necessary by the weekend to have one four-member team of surgeons alternating between the General Hospital and the Grey Nuns Hospital. At present there is a four-member team at each hospital.

He expected Regina would be called upon for a larger volume of surgical work should the supply of surgeons at emergency centres in the southern part of Saskatchewan diminish.

Police were ordered to protect doctors and their families at Swift Current following threats by an organization calling itself the "Swift Current Citizens' Safety Committee."

Letters signed by the committee ordered doctors to return to normal practice by Friday morning "or suffer such harm to themselves, their families or their property as the organization may deem fit."

In the wake of the threats, two doctors left their jobs at Saskatoon, at least temporarily, to get their families out of Swift Current. The doctors were on emergency duty in Saskatoon but had left their families in Swift Current.

"Everything is quiet" but precautions had to be taken until the writers of threat letters were not serious.

He didn't anticipate any trouble.

Mayor Dahl said there were 17 doctors in Swift Current but only seven now were providing emergency service.

Legislative Buildings Under Guard?

At Regina, Police Chief A. G. Cookson would neither confirm nor deny reports that police were closely guarding the legislative buildings in case of demonstrations.

Deputy Premier J. H. Brocklebank said the provincial government considers the medical care situation "apparently under control."

He said there "appears nothing in the nature of panic and alarm" and the general situation is "very quiet." He made no forecast on how long the current emergency will last.

In Saskatoon, Dr. George W. Peacock, assistant to president, H. D. Dalgleish of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons, denied reports that the doctors' strike was buckling under a mounting tide of criticism.

"From where I sit it looks like it's stronger than ever," Dr. Peacock said.

He was commenting on a report by United Press International which stated "the pendulum has swung, and the great weight of public dissatisfaction now is being brought to bear upon the doctors."

Many physicians who shut down their offices four days ago in defiance of the province's new socialized medicine law apparently are ready to give up the struggle, the UPI report said.

Wild Gun Battle In Oran Streets

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

ALGERS (AP) — A violent gun battle in the heart of Oran, European section, shattered Algeria's celebration of its first official independence holiday.

More than 100 dead and wounded were reported in the first hour of the fighting, which swept the former stronghold of European Secret Army terrorists.

Two hours after the fighting started, machine-gun fire still rattled over the city. French riot police cars set up positions near the battle area.

The gunfire panicked tens of thousands of Moslems in the midst of a victory celebration. An official of the city's main hospital said all the casualties taken there were Moslems. But a number of Europeans also were killed or wounded.

A Moslem policeman said the firing came from holdout terrorists of the European Secret Army, whose leaders had bowed to Algerian independence after months of murder and arson. The policeman's report could not be immediately confirmed.

Two hours after the fighting started, machine-gun fire still rattled over the city. French riot police cars set up positions near the battle area.

There are two of these fantastic tramways in the wilderness of the Southern Yukon and both are only a year old. They

TUEBINGEN, West Germany—A 39-year-old geology student, accused of seducing more than 100 women and girl students by convincing them his doctor had prescribed love as the only cure for him, has been sentenced here to 10 months' imprisonment.

The student, Nikolaus Reissig, has weak eyesight, a bad leg and was only 60 per cent fit for work, a court here was told Tuesday.

The court said Reissig confided in his prospective lovers that his doctor could prescribe only one hope for him—love-making. Without love, he was doomed to go mad, blind or die.

Many of the women and girls were said to have met Reissig on numerous occasions believing they were assisting in a course of medical treatment.

TAIPEI, Formosa—A Henpecked Husbands' Club has been formed at Chiaotung in south Formosa. Lin Wei-yao, head of the Chiaotung Farmers' Association, was elected president. But Lin hesitated and explained he would have to have his wife's approval before accepting the honor.

INDIANAPOLIS—John Shirley, 74, says the streets just aren't safe for a man anymore. Shirley told police he was walking to his home from his car Wednesday when a woman stepped up behind him and grabbed into his back pocket, Shirley said, and fled with his billfold containing $30.

ST. LOUIS—Farmer Carlos Meremonte has filed a petition for an injunction to halt operation of the Southmoor Golf Course because it is giving his cows indignation. He claimed the cattle got ill swallowing stray golf balls lofted over his fences by duffers.

NEW YORK—A 61-year-old British mapmaker who single-handedly manoeuvred a 39-foot yacht across the Atlantic in record time was aboard her today in New York harbor, awaiting customs, immigration and health officials.

The Gypsy Moth III, piloted by Frank Chichester, reached the Ambrose lightship here Wednesday, 33 days and 15 hours after departing Plymouth, England. The crossing broke a 40-day solo record set by Chichester two years ago in the same craft.

were built by Norteknik, a Norwegian firm which is one of the few in the world equipped to do this job.

The Norwegians brought out their own construction crew—expert mountain climbers, who scrambled up and down the sheer rock faces like mountain goats. It took them a year to build each tramway.

These cableways strung like gossamer threads from the mountain peaks, are only one link in the $35 million microwave chain that is part of the Ballistic Missile Early Warning System—the same system, incidentally, that relays my stories.

Here, a stone's throw from the moss-chinked cabins of the early settlers, is automation gone wild. Nobody lives or works in that shining, humming building on top of old Paint. Yet if a door is so much as left carelessly ajar the electronic nerve centre at Whitehorse will know about it.

No Chances Taken

If the power should fail, a diesel engine will take over without anybody pressing a switch—and the oil will be already warm so the engine can fire and if that engine should fail another will instantly take its place and another and another if need be. Nor is it conceivable that, come wind, fire, freezing cold or act of God that cable linked to the peak can be broken. It has been 10 times overdesigned for safety purposes.

"Who steers the little car?" asked my three-year-old son, Paul, as we hung suspended against the naked rock, looking across the grizzly bear and mountain sheep country. Nobody steers it but even if the operator on the ground below were to drop dead the car would come home by itself.

Civilians Barred

I should probably explain that such trips as we made are not available to ordinary tourists—indeed to anybody but service personnel. This is a restricted area and you aren't even allowed to drive in to the base sites. It's not really for security; it's merely a device used to stop the tourists who used to plug in their block heaters to the outside lower outlets.

From Paint Mountain, the highway took us past the Dominion Government Experiment Station.

GRITS COULD FORCE VOTE BY CHRISTMAS

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Canadians might find themselves trooping to the polls in a second general election this year, just before Christmas.

A December election is definitely in the cards if the Liberals persist in bringing forward motions of want of confidence after the first session of the new parliament opens and the Social Credit carry out their threat.

The Socreds have said they will support such motions if they are aimed against the government's austerity program. The session is expected to be summoned about Sept. 27.

This could mean a vote of confidence being called in the House about Oct. 4. This would project an election to December 3, for voting day, if the government was defeated on the confidence motion in the House.

mental Farm Station, purposely built here because this land is the most uninviting that any farmer can hope to till. The temperature can drop to 80 below in the winter.

There is no month that is guaranteed free from killing frosts. And there have been years in which the frost-free summer season lasted exactly five days. Yet there were parrot tulips blooming in the gardens when we drove past.

Blue, Blue Water

The highway itself just past this point is thickly bordered by blue forget-me-nots. When we reached Klusne lake these flowers seemed to turn a soft grey by contrast. They say this lovely sheet of water can show as many as nine shades of blue at one time, certainly it must be the bluest stretch of water in the world—bluer than the Bay of Naples or the famous little Blausee in Switzerland—streaked and striped as it is with touches of aquamarine and turquoise.

We drove along this lake for 40 miles always in the purple shadows of the glacier topped St. Elias Mountains, the tallest on the continent—twice as high as the Rockies. It was as if the highway builders had purposely arranged things so the best was saved for the last. The scenery keeps topping itself as we move north.

Our Tallest Peak

Not long ago we saw the solid white plume of Mount Logan, our tallest peak, jutting three miles and more into the sky at the end of that broad valley which is skinned by the myriad channels of the unruly Donjek River.

Then we were into volcano-land with the white ash of an ancient explosion chalking the soil on both sides of the road and giving the White River both its name and its distinctive color.

Minor Accidents

Our trip, which is approaching its climax, has not been without its minor mishaps: the axle on our trailer has been badly bent by the potholes in the road, the rear window of the station wagon was completely shattered by flying stones and the lid has just come off one of the tins spraying freshly ground coffee all over the butter.

Apart from that things have been progressing nicely: the baby has just learned to walk, the girls have now trained themselves to get the tent up, stuffed disposable diapers between the beer bottles to prevent further catastrophes.

Barring additional mishaps we ought to reach Dawson City by the time you read these words.

BREMERTON, Wash. (AP)—Hood Canal and Olympic Peninsula resorts are experiencing the worst tourist drought in years, despite the influx of tourists to Seattle for the world's fair, the Bremerton Sun reported.

Dozens of better known resorts had vacancies for the Fourth of July, when they usually are booked solid.

ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY

BURY, Dr. Michael Ramsay, said today he will fly to Moscow July 30 at the invitation of Russian Orthodox patriarch Alexei. Purpose of the visit is to strengthen the ties between Church of England and the Orthodox Church and to encourage peopling of joint doctrinal discussions, the Archbishop said.

No Appeal For Recount By Liberal

Victoria Liberal Foster Isher

Mr. Isher said Wednesday he will not appeal for a judicial recount of federal election ballots.

The recount was refused a week ago by county court judge J. B. Clearhugh. Today was the last day Mr. Isherwood could have gone to the Supreme Court with an appeal.

His decision makes the final official election result in Victoria a victory for Conservative A. deB. McPhillips by 216 votes.

UP TO PUBLIC

"I have always been firmly of the opinion that matters of public concern should not be settled upon fine technicalities," said Mr. Isherwood, "and further it seems clear that judicial recounts fall within this category."

"I think it is best such decisions should be made by the public at all times."

Mr. Isherwood will wait for another election, an opportunity for Victoria and Canada to make a firm decision, he said.

Hospital Has Everything Except Doctors, Patients

By SCOTT SCHILL

CUPAR, Sask. (CP)—Cupar Hospital is open, it has staff and equipment, but no patients and no doctor.

Cupar, 50 miles northeast of Regina, has a brick and cement hospital, opened in 1959. It has 13 beds, four nurses, four ward aides, a janitor, a cook, a part-time laundress and cleaning woman.

But Cupar's Dr. D. H. Haworth is on holidays, along with many of Saskatchewan's 900-member College of Physicians and Surgeons, which has bitterly opposed the compulsory public medical care insurance plan that went into effect Sunday.

The doctors are providing only emergency treatment at 24 designated hospitals.

Normal practice for most Saskatchewan doctors ended Sunday, with the start of the medical care insurance plan. Dr. Haworth stayed one day later to deliver the baby of Mrs. Rose Donnawell.

LAST-PATIENT LEAVES

Since Sunday, Mrs. Donnawell and her baby boy have been the only patients. She was leaving today.

Dr. Haworth, who had his normal holidays last winter when he went to Mexico, took a leave of absence. The acting hospital matron, Cupar housewife Mrs. Edna Nord, said he did not indicate when he would be back.

Dr. Haworth, a British doctor, practiced in Alberta before coming to Cupar seven years ago.

Mrs. Gladys Jones, wife of an army career man stationed in West Germany, left her matron's position for a five-week vacation in her native Ireland.

Mrs. Nord said Wednesday she was apprehensive about being in charge of the hospital without a doctor.

"The first night I sat up and read a first aid book right through," she said. All the hospital can provide is first aid.

Since Dr. Haworth left, one boy, whom the nurses thought might be suffering from a kidney ailment, has been sent to Regina, the nearest emergency doctor service centre.

Another boy was treated, but had come under instructions from Dr. Haworth to have bandages on his burns changed. He had been discharged from the hospital last week, along with all the other patients.

Hees, Bennett Swap Charges

Political war between Premier Bennett and Ottawa flared anew Wednesday when Trade Minister George Hees blamed the B.C. government for causing Canada's financial crisis.

Mr. Bennett said Mr. Hees should resign.

"Since election night, when I made certain observations, I have been extremely quiet about the federal situation. But there will be a time when I will not be quiet about the debacle of the federal government," threatened Mr. Bennett.

The Social Credit party has made national statements about trying to avoid an immediate head-on clash with the Tories.

Mr. Hees told a Tory rally at Cornwall:

"The withdrawal of capital

Took Tory Defeat to Produce Alibi

The premier said Mr. Hees was making "wild election talk."

"It's taken Mr. Hees nearly a year and an election defeat of the Tory party in history to come up with an alibi."

Mr. Hees doesn't know anything about economics, said the premier.

"The reason why the Conservatives brought Canada to its knees in the dollar crisis was due to the continuous, year-after-year deficits in interest payments and trade balances which during the life of the Diefenbaker government have never been less than $1,000,000,000 a year."

Other reasons, said the premier, were the federal budget investment in Canada started when the United Kingdom became apprehensive about Premier Bennett's expropriation of the B.C. Electric.

He was speaking at a meeting for the Tory candidate in the deferred election at Stornoway, to be held July 16.

He said the B.C. government had undermined foreign investors' confidence in Canada. "Mr. Bennett is the one who caused this situation."

He said foreign investors feared their interests would be jeopardized by men like Mr. Bennett taking over across the country.

deficits and huge losses chalked up by such crown agencies as TCA, CBC and CNR.

"Mr. Hees has only one honorable thing to do—and that is resign."

B.C. Trade Minister Robert Bonner said Mr. Hees was talking "14-carat nonsense."

"It is a fantastic idea; B.C. is one of the few places where capital investment has continued at a high level despite the crisis."

B.C. Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said he felt Mr. Bennett's "on-again off-again performance" would make some financiers "pause."

However, Mr. Hees was "drawing a bit of a long bow" in blaming the premier for the federal crisis.

B.C. Doctors Lower Bills In Fight

VANCOUVER (CP)—An attempt to prove that prepaid medical plans are better than state medicine is underway in British Columbia, say officials representing the province's doctors and a private scheme already operating in B.C.

They said bills to the province's medical plans are getting lower as a result.

The cost-cutting is being achieved by doctors' care in not "overservicing"—a policy recommended by the B.C. Medical Association.

And, as a result, premiums for plan members are going down slightly.

Joseph H. Crosbie, general manager of the Credit Union and Co-Operative Health Services Society, the province's second largest pre-paid medical insurance plan, said Wednesday:

"Doctors have been cautioned by the medical association not to let health plan rates get too high or people may want socialized medicine."

Dr. Tim McCoy, executive director of the B.C. Medical Association, confirmed the association was out to prove pre-paid medical plans were "better and more economical" than state medicine.

Doctors Respond From Far Afield To Sask. Appeal

BY RUSSELL ELMAN

REGINA (CP)—The Saskatchewan government's SOS call for doctors is getting an answer.

Doctors from Britain, the United States and other parts of Canada now are helping to provide emergency medical services for the province, beleaguered by the first doctor's strike in North American history.

The Saskatchewan government says 11 doctors have already arrived as temporary help and expects the number to grow steadily.

Biggest source of help is expected to be Britain, where 25,000 physicians and 2,400 hospitals have been advised by mail of Saskatchewan's need.

Provincial health officials said British doctors will begin to arrive in Saskatchewan shortly at the rate of four a day. These would include general practitioners and specialists who now operate under Britain's state-run medical plan.

Sixty persons are being interviewed at the Saskatchewan government's office in London. These selected are signed to contracts varying from one to three months under which the provincial government pays return air fares and provides remuneration ranging between $800 and $1,800 a month.

These doctors may partially offset the 63 doctors reported by the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons to have quit the province in recent weeks.

Under Canadian law and medical practice, British doctors, if on the British medical register, may practise in Canada without further qualification.

However, American doctors have to write examinations before becoming eligible for joining the provincial College of Physicians and Surgeons' registry. U.S. volunteers, hired by the Saskatchewan Medical Care Insurance Commission, are being assigned as internes in hospitals under licensed physicians.

At present the newcomers include six from Britain, two from the U.S. and three from other Canadian provinces. Two Saskatchewan doctors also have come out of retirement.

ANSWERS SOS

Dr. Gerhard Beck, 53, a Jacksonville, Fla., physician, answered the SOS after reading about the Saskatchewan situation in the Florida Times-Union Sunday.

He telephoned Deputy Premier J. H. Brockelbank, offered his services, and soon after was flying halfway across the continent to the Prairie province to take up an internist's post at the hospital at Leader, 250 miles west of Regina.

"I feel it was my duty as a physician to offer my services for patients in need of medical care," he said Wednesday night in an interview.

ONT. DOCS HELP

A number of doctors in Ontario hospitals have also indicated they will offer their services temporarily in Saskatchewan.

VMS CHIEF SCORES MEDICARE

Majority Polled Criticize Doctors

A Victoria doctor today accused the Saskatchewan government of politicking in acute medical care and neglecting the two most urgent fields of chronic and mental illness.

Charges were levelled by Dr. J. L. Heffernan, spokesman for Greater Victoria doctors as president of the Victoria Medical Society.

He was asked to comment, with citizens selected at random, on the war being waged by Saskatchewan doctors now in their fifth day of defying provincial medical care legislation.

Most of the people polled said doctors have no right to withdraw their services, leaving only emergency treatment facilities through the prairie province.

OATH VIOLATED

Some said it is contrary to the Hippocratic oath, an ethical pledge sworn by doctors.

"It is a fundamental right of any doctor to refuse to treat any patient for any illness, for which he has not already treated him," Dr. Heffernan replied.

"There is nothing in the Hippocratic oath, directly or by implication, that says a doctor must treat a patient."

FREEDOM THE FACTOR

He made four other major points:

• Most people miss the point of the whole controversy: freedom.

"Doctors, like other people, are free men. This is being played down by the socialists and others," the physician said.

• "Distrust" of the Saskatchewan government by Saskatchewan doctors since its re-election in 1960.

For economic reasons, the government reduced hospital care for indigents from 21 to 14 days, cut old age pensioner drug bills from 80 to 50 per cent, froze hospital budgets to the 1960 level and made no provision for increasing care for mental and chronically ill.

• Saskatchewan voters are responsible for the situation because they elected the government "against the wishes of the doctors."

• The attitude of union leaders in trying so hard to debase and degrade the medical profession into slavery is hypocritical," Dr. Heffernan said.

POLITICAL FOOTBALL

A Victoria dentist, preferring to be anonymous, called the situation today a "political football."

"The politicians are trying to run the doctors' lives and the boys don't want to put up with it," he said.

Ethically, the doctors are on call 24 hours a day, according to the Hippocratic path. What's happened down there, I don't know. They appear to have thrown the oath out of the window.

DEFENCE ACT CITED

Edwin Haw, woodworker's union officer:

"I am amazed at the position taken by doctors in that they are supposed to care for the ailing, and now they are on strike. I'm surprised the government hasn't used the Civil Defence Act like they did here."

(He was referring to government takeover of the Vancouver Island-mainland ferries during a seamen's strike in 1958.)

"It's good enough for the trade unions, but not for professional men," he said.

Mrs. E. O. Thomson, 5205 Del Monte:

"I don't think the doctors should have withdrawn medical care. There should be some way for them to agree (to make) medical care a little cheaper."

WON'T LAST LONG

John Stearn, 628 Atkins:

"The rebellion won't last long. In 10 years we'll have medicare here. All the provinces are centering opinion right on it, trying to squash it, but it will come."

"Hospital insurance is a good thing and they rebelled against it at first.

Mrs. Martha Johnston, 148 St. Lawrence:

"Doctors shouldn't refuse to treat patients if they need it. I think we could get along without a medical plan. We did it for many years and it worked fine when I lived in Saskatchewan."

LAW DEFIED

Percy Rayment, 4011 Blenkinsop:

"I must condemn this open defiance of the law and callous indifference to the welfare of patients. It will impair the high esteem in which the medical profession has been held by the public."

Frank Burrows, 1221 Rockland:

"I wouldn't call it a strike; they're simply opposing the government for forcing something on them they feel is not right."

Mrs. Linda Walker, 1774 Denman:

"Doctors should not strike. Sickens is something you can't put off until tomorrow."

"We can't have everything. If the doctors would co-operate with the government, I'm sure something could be worked out."

On the Way to London

UNLESS MR. DIEFENBAKER is compelled to change his mind and meet Parliament in August he can scarcely get a vote of confidence before he goes to the Commonwealth conference in September. But even if he called an early session much more than a few days' hurried debate is required of the great issues to be discussed in London.

Is Canada to co-operate with Britain's plan to join the European Common Market? Or should Canada, allied with Australia and New Zealand, continue to frustrate and harass British policy? That is the great question to be settled before Mr. Diefenbaker undertakes to represent Canada at perhaps the most important conference in the history of the Commonwealth.

According to the statements of their leaders, all three opposition parties in the newly-elected Canadian Parliament are flatly opposed to Mr. Diefenbaker's policy on the Common Market. They attack his whole attitude toward foreign trade generally. And together they received almost two-thirds of the election vote, with a collective majority of members in Parliament.

Under these circumstances it was incredible that Mr. Diefenbaker should think of speaking for Canada at London before he consulted Parliament and found whether it would vote confidence in him. Even a general vote of confidence at a brief August session would not be adequate in the face of these grave Commonwealth decisions. Parliament should definitely decide whether Canada is to co-operate with or oppose British policy. The sentiment of Parliament on this specific question should be tested by more than a general confidence vote.

For that purpose more than a few days' debate is required, when seldom has any Canadian Parliament ever been called upon to decide an issue of greater importance, an issue more complex, an issue of more profound consequence to the nation's future.

To assure adequate debate Mr. Diefenbaker should have called Parliament at the earliest legal date, July 18. This is not merely the view of the three opposition parties. It is strongly expressed by The Montreal Gazette, the oldest and most reliable organ of the Conservative Party. "The Canadian Parliament," says The Gazette, "should be called at once . . . The government itself, being in a minority position, cannot assume that having the largest group in the House is necessarily the same as being accepted by the House."

Quite so. But even if the government is accepted by the House for the time being, because no party wants another election just now, it should be instructed clearly on Canada's attitude at the London conference. If Mr. Diefenbaker cannot accept that instruction in good conscience then he should resign immediately. Or if Parliament is prepared to support his attitude toward Britain and the Common Market he can go to London as the authorized spokesman of Canada, but not otherwise.

In addition to all that, of course, he must discover as soon as possible whether Parliament accepts his austerity program, his about-face on basic national policy, his present method of saving the Canadian dollar.

To suggest that all this business can be properly considered in a few days is absurd. Such a schedule would be an affront to Parliament and, in the lowest terms of practical politics, would be dangerous to the government. For if Parliament is outraged by Mr. Diefenbaker's treatment it may well destroy his government without delay.

The Humble Ambassadors

WHEN PRESIDENT KENNEDY launched his Peace Corps it was greeted on the one hand with excessive hopes, on the other with ridicule. Now it is shaking down into reality.

Commencing its second year, the Peace Corps includes 2,400 new recruits, young men and women who have volunteered to live, on equal terms, with foreign peoples and help them to improve their lot. By the end of 1962 some 5,000 of these modest ambassadors of goodwill should be serving in many under-developed regions of the earth.

Who is best able to judge this unique experiment? Surely the nations who have admitted the Peace Corps members. And every nation where they have been admitted is asking for more of them as soon as possible.

The New York Times remarks that the chief strength of the Peace Corps lies in its personal and voluntary character. The youngsters now being trained for their work in American universities "will carry with them much of what is best in the human heart and mind. They have a chance to demonstrate the constructive spirit of a free people." Clearly that demonstration has not been wasted among foreigners. At first skeptical, they are now enthusiastic about men and women whose only purpose is to serve others without personal reward.

Wakeham's Strong Bid

BILL WAKEHAM HAS EARNED the admiration of Victoria's sports-minded community with his splendid performance in taking the medal, against a strong field, in the current B.C. Amateur golf championship at Victoria Golf Club. His 67-68 provide impressive credentials in his bid for a place on this year's Willingdon Cup team.

Unfortunately, he has not fared too well at the hands of selectors in past years despite an impressive showing on the golf course. Last year, for instance, he was left off the team but went on to embarrass the selection committee somewhat by taking medalist honors in the Canadian Amateur championship at Edmonton.

The Willingdon Cup, it should be noted, is awarded to the province whose four-man team produces the lowest scores over 36 holes. Young Wakeham has shown a special aptitude for this card-and-pencil test (which is a skill something quite apart from match play) for many years. His performance this week underlines a very valid claim to a place on the team.

Learn Or Die

WHILE FALLOUT FROM THE recent American nuclear tests has apparently resulted in no serious effects, the whole system of fallout detection in the United States is being given critical scrutiny.

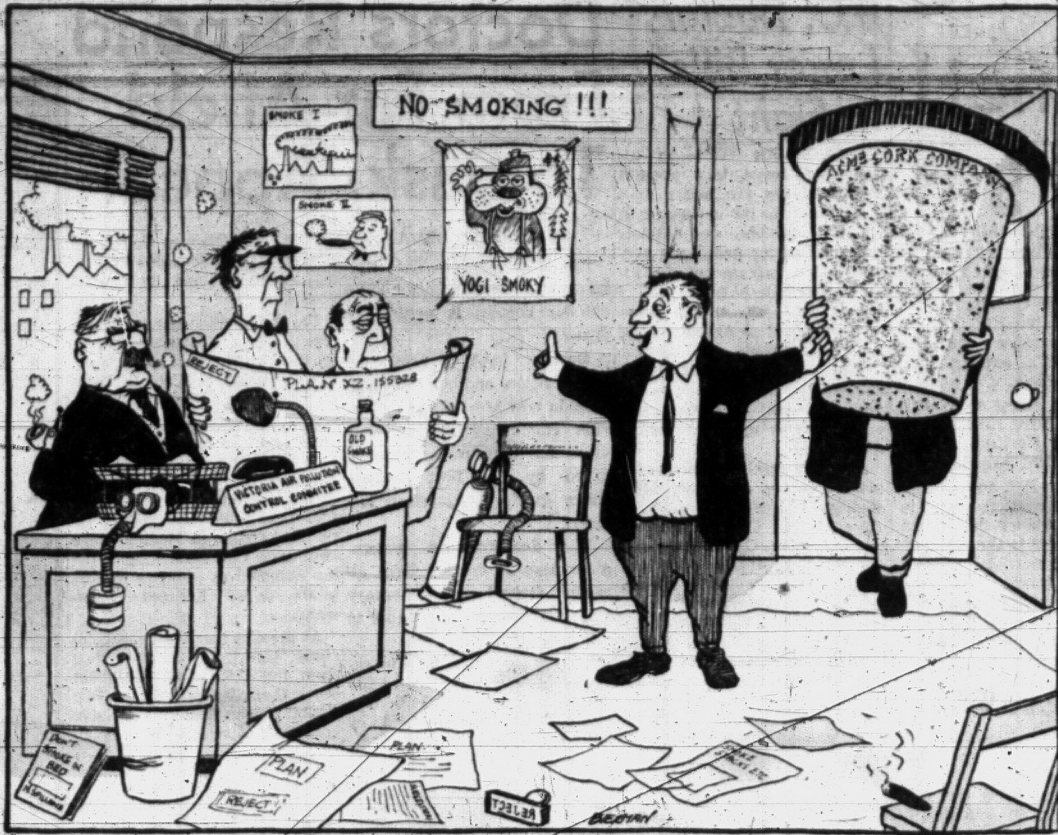

Studies in the midwest region of the United States have shown a rise in radioactive iodine contamination of milk which was attributed to the Pacific detonations. The level reached four-fifths of the exposure deemed to be safe for limited periods, but was not seen by the experts as constituting an imminent danger. The level decreased sharply in early June, although still remaining higher than in March and April.

But while the consensus seems to be that man-made radiation constitutes a danger that is still far from serious—it is much less, for instance, than the level of radiation we normally receive from natural sources—there is much work to be done in the way of determining acceptable quantities, and their effects on the body itself and on the genes which transmit hereditary characteristics.

One problem, emphasized before a Congressional sub-committee a few days ago, involves the collection and interpretation of radiation samples. Information is not available soon enough to be of full value, it was said. "Total diet samples," for instance, needed in determining the amount of Strontium 90 in food, may not be available until three or four months after the food has been consumed.

Obviously much must be done, both nationally and internationally—the latter was urged by Canada's Howard Green last spring—to get proper information on the hazards we are being subjected to by our own actions. Quite apart from nuclear warfare, the dangers from peacetime tests and the growing problem of disposal of industrial nuclear wastes demand a high priority in the programs of all governments.

New Look at the Dollar

WITH its impressive vote on the Trade Bill, the House has made a far-reaching contribution to peace and prosperity. The bill should now go through the Senate without crippling amendments, and the country will then have equipped itself to deal with coming events in Europe.

It is now fairly certain that M. Jean Monnet and the friends of an enlarged and liberal Common Market are prevailing over the advocates of an exclusive and restrictive Franco-German Europe. The aspects have become good that the Six will come to terms with Great Britain. If so, we shall in the not too distant future be negotiating for a low tariff trading area comprising in various arrangements the non-Communist world.

It is probable that this creative movement in the Western world will acquire a momentum which will soon carry the trans-Atlantic partnership to a critical problem which will have to be solved in the near future. It will have to be solved if the enlarged trading arrangements are to work. The expanding world economy must have a more stable and a more adequate world currency. In order to do away with the chronic exchange troubles which now plague sterling and the dollar, there will have to be some kind of international reserve system which does for the world economy what our own Federal Reserve System does for our own national economy.

It has become increasingly evident that the gold withdrawals and the so-called vulnerability of the dollar are an international problem which could not be solved, even theoretically, by the United States alone. This is not a new discovery. It was foreseen by financial experts during the war, and it has been discussed actively here and abroad since the first serious gold crisis at the end of 1958. M. Monnet and his colleagues have been at work on it for a long time, and there is already in existence highly effective common action by the central banks to regulate gold movements. There is also discussion in Europe and in Washington which looks forward to the pooling of the monetary reserves of the Common Market and from there on to an arrangement with the United States.

We should begin now to prepare our minds for the effort of solving the international monetary problem. For while the skilled co-operation of the central bankers is dampening down speculative attacks against the dollar, there is no use hiding it from ourselves that in the financial markets of the world the dollar is regarded as vulnerable. Between 1949 and 1960 foreign gold reserves and dollar holdings had risen some $27 billion, and of that amount the United States contributed more than $21 billion in the form of gold withdrawals and short term liabilities convertible into gold.

The feeling in the financial market that the dollar is vulnerable arises from a realization that we are at the end of a period and of a policy. For some 13 years we have promoted European recovery and as an essential part of it we have carried out an immense operation for the redistribution of the excessive gold stocks which we accumulated during and just after the World War.

One-Way Street

The operation to redistribute gold has had to come to an end because under the rules of the game as, for good but transient reasons, we chose to play it, it is a one-way street. Anyone, except an American, who has American dollars can convert them into gold. On the other hand an American citizen who has dollars or sterling or francs or marks cannot convert them into gold.

Under these rules of the game we have invested abroad, we have given aid and made loans abroad, we have stationed American troops abroad. All of this has placed dollars abroad which can be converted into gold on demand. But if, for example, a loan is repaid, no gold can move from Europe to America. Until 1958 this worked well enough because we had such a very big stock of gold. But as the gold stock has been drawn down while the liquid claims have increased, the time has come when the claims to our gold are bigger than the supply of gold.

This does not mean, of course, that the United States became insolvent under Eisenhower in 1958. Far from it. Our investments abroad are very much larger than our liabilities. But our assets are long term and they are not convertible into gold whereas our liabilities are short term, are "hot money," and under the rules of the game as we alone, except for Switzerland, play it, are freely convertible into gold.

Time to Share Burden

The dollar is not vulnerable because President Eisenhower and President Kennedy, jointly or severally, are less virtuous and responsible than they should be. The dollar is vulnerable because we are attempting to operate unilaterally a gold exchange standard for the whole non-Communist world. The time has come to share the burden by agreeing on a multi-lateral gold exchange standard. There is a need to put an end to the chronic exchange troubles in London and New York—with the overhanging threats of international deflation, or of exchange control, or of emergency restrictive tariffs, or of devaluation.

There is no imminent threat of any of these disasters. But because these disasters are not excluded by formal and public institutional measures—such as an international reserve system—we are entering what promises to be a period of greatly expanding world trade and of economic growth with unsteady nerves and with diminished confidence.

Ripe for 'Castroism'

One is filled with revulsion at the feeling of relief on the part of weaklings, as suggested (probably correctly) in your editorial of June 29, that they need no longer worry about the question of trade with Cuba, because, through a dwindling supply of dollars, that hard-pressed little country is finding it more and more difficult to pay for much-needed Canadian goods.

This type of Canadian citizen has been on the horns of a dilemma, whether to trade with a country that has been thrown into the lap of Communist nations, or to knuckle down to Washington and to help our "ally" to starve Cuba into submission to such a regime as that under which the great mass of the Cuban people were for years oppressed and ground under heel. A regime that was a bonanza for millionaire gangsters from the United States, and a mecca for tourists who were entirely indifferent to, perhaps even ignorant of, the vast guilt that lay between the parasitic wealthy at the top and those in abject poverty at the bottom.

Appalling contrasts between rich and poor are the powder keg on which practically all of the Latin American countries rest today, and a great many of them are ripe for what is loosely termed "Castroism." Credit is due President Kennedy for reminding his Mexican hosts that their revolution, like the American Revolution, will not be complete until every child goes to school, until every man, woman and child has a decent roof over his head, and every citizen has a decent wage. A long way still to go: a way that will not be advanced by the wishy-washy attitude of those who take satisfaction in the inability of Latin Americans to buy Canadian goods!

'Nothing to Lose'

The car dealer from Rouyn, with the hotrod voice, is called "Le Tonnerre"—the thunderer—in the rural parts of eastern Quebec. Among the more enlightened city dwellers this wild "Creditiste" Caouette is regarded as a sort of backwoods Billy Graham suddenly jutting into the French-Canadian political picture.

An apt pupil of the Yash Bennett style, he strode like a messiah through rural Quebec shouting his simple message—"You've been betrayed by the Pearsonbaker parties, now give us a chance. . . . You have nothing to lose" . . . and promising the faithful lots of easy money, a new flag, freedom from income tax up to $5,000, and extended family allowances, et cetera.

Who were the faithful? And why did they respond? The highly respected editor of Montreal's Le Devoir calls them the "Poujadists of North America." And one competent survey said the average Caouette voter had stopped school before grade eight.

Far this French-Canadian messiah of the Major Douglas money theory will get in parliament. But one thing is sure, the voice of Caouette (not Bennett's nor any other) will now be the voice that matters in national sacred circles.

NEW DELHI

Last Planes Into Britain

By BALRAM TANDON

With Britain's Immigration Act, effective July 1, imposing for the first time some restrictions of Commonwealth citizens immigrating to Britain, travel agents in India and airlines passing through here have for some months now been riding a wave of prosperity never experienced before. Last week the wave was reaching its peak as thousands of Indians attempted to beat the deadline.

The rush for passages began soon after the passing of the act in the British Parliament last year. An estimated 5,000 Indians have already left by regular flights and another thousand boarded the last flight last week. These figures may be conservative. Many would-be migrants, failing to get passages in New Delhi, went to Pakistan, others journeyed to Calcutta and, from there to Singapore, to fly back over India to Britain.

Clogged Terminals

At India's three principal airports—Bombay, Calcutta and New Delhi—the terminal buildings were clogged with mounds of baggage, trunks, bags and bedrolls. Men and women milled around, some travellers, others to see them off, and still more hopefully waiting for a possible cancellation.

As a rule the migrants left in groups of ten or more. At the head of each group was an old hand—the "foreign returned" as he is known in these parts. He acts as guide, adviser on the multifarious problems of air travel—customs, baggage regulations, passport and visa clearances. On the journey he is a friend, philosopher and guide. Once in Britain, he becomes a one-man information and employment bureau. Unlike the others, he has a smattering of education, is fluent in English, and well dressed.

No Adventurers

The majority of the new emigrants are not adventurers out to make a fortune. Fifty in every 100 are middle-aged, 25 barely out of their teens, and the remainder the wrong side of 40. Few of them are able clearly to explain what takes them away from their home and friends. Many, however, now have relatives in Britain and are lured by the wish to achieve wages and a standard of living which are not available in a remote Punjab village.

The youngsters between 14 and 20 have a ready answer—they wish to study. Those between 20 and 25 seek entrance to one of Britain's lesser known technical colleges. In India the competition is such as to limit entry to engineering institutes only to the really brilliant. Those in the middle-age group hope to go into business with a relative—a small sweet shop or some other small enterprise. Few have any knowledge of employment or accommodation problems in Britain.

Little Money

Most of them arrive with little money to tide them over until they land a job. The majority have sold their businesses and belongings to raise the air fare. Even if there is money to spare, they cannot take it with them for the Indian government, hard pressed for foreign exchange, permits a basic quota of only £5.

Prime Minister Nehru has not been too happy about the rush of migrants and has referred to it twice in recent weeks. His opposition stems from the fact that most of the migrants do not speak English, have no knowledge of British customs, and that their presence might have repercussions on India's reputation.

Indian officials are also concerned at the side-effects of the emigration flood. The rush to beat the July 1 deadline gave an impetus to passport forging. A forged passport may easily be had in a Punjab village for £50, and with it such fringe benefits as the racketeers arranging the sale of land and property, transit facilities at New Delhi, and, possibly, influence with the travel agent to secure a quick passage.

Forged Documents

Detection at the airports has not been easy, but increased vigilance during the past weeks has resulted in the arrest of more than 100 people with forged documents. Almost as many have been apprehended in Pakistan.

Mr. Nehru has threatened new restrictions on the issue of passports, not only to Britain, but generally. As part of the drive to conserve foreign exchange, airlines have been asked not to issue tickets without clearance from the Reserve Bank.

Gerald Waring ... REPORTING

OTTAWA—A little arithmetic shows that unless large numbers of American dollars resume their former flow northward for investment in Canada, the modest surpluses of a surplus on certain imports is not going to defeat our dollar crisis.

Officials explain that this super-tariff will be applied against imports valued at about $3,000,000,000 a year. They expect the higher prices due to the surcharge will to a certain degree restrain people from importing these goods. And that is just what the government wants, because Canada's deficit in its international payments was running at a rate of $1,250,000,000 a year prior to June 24.

That meant this amount of money was being drained out of our reserves of gold and U.S. dollars, because by the start of this year the customary net inflow of U.S. dollar capital had dried up.

But the surcharge is not going to redress the payments deficit. Officials estimate that the 5, 10 and 15 per cent super-tariffs will result only in a reduction of 10 per cent in the imports of goods covered by the surcharge. And 10 per cent of $3,000,000,000 is only $300,000,000.

At quick glance, this looks like trying to use $3 to pay a $12.50 bill. But it is not that simple... nor that stupid. The import surcharges are only part of a program which is intended to restore foreign confidence in our economy, dollar and government and reactivate the inflow of foreign capital that can be used to balance our international accounts.

The massive U.S. dollar loans to bolster the Canadian dollar are intended to restore foreign confidence in our currency, along with Prime Minister Diefenbaker's declaration that the dollar will not be further devalued.

Foreign confidence also is wooed by Diefenbaker's declaration that there will be no exchange controls, and by the substantial steps towards a balanced budget that are represented by higher revenues from imports and axe-wielding on government spending.

Foreign currency is being actively wooed by the increase in the bank rate to 6 per cent, which means that a U.S. dollar, for example, can earn higher interest in Canada than it can in the U.S.

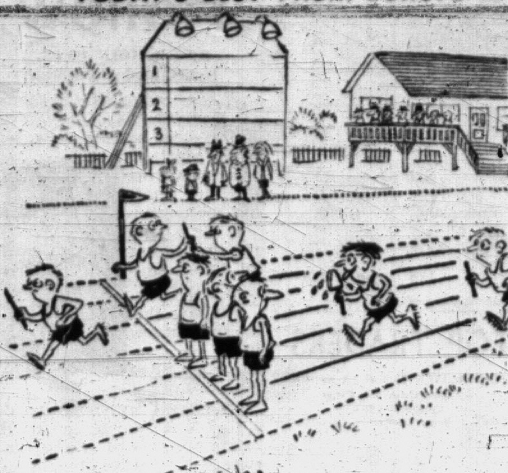

And then there are these unspecified "longer-term measures of a positive, constructive nature" that the prime minister promised to introduce later. One of them could be removal of the 15 per cent withholding tax on dividend payments to non-residents, to recreate an incentive to U.S. capital inflow.

Whether the program will in fact restore foreign confidence and reactivate foreign investment should be apparent within six months. And if the answer is negative, the next step could well be tight foreign exchange controls.

As one economist told me, "We're up against a psychological situation," meaning that this is not a question of cutting here and there to achieve an arithmetic balance, but a question of restoring confidence in the minds of hundreds of thousands of individual persons in many countries.

If we lose this psychological battle, he said, "we're done for." Economically Canada could revert to being a little nation trying to pull itself up by its own bootstraps, and the tiny measures of austerity asked by the government's present program will be as nothing compared with the situation we would then face.

U.S. AND EUROPE

Long Way To Go Before 'Union'

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's proposal for partnership with Western Europe was not new with him although it will get more attention in the years ahead.

Kennedy dipped as far back as the 1960 presidential campaign for some of the words and phrases he used Wednesday at Philadelphia.

Nevertheless, he left the idea of U.S. partnership with a United Western Europe deliberately vague, as he has in the past. There were three understandable reasons for this:

1. At this moment no one can predict what kind of unity the West Europeans will work out among themselves. They're just talking of it now.

2. What kind of partnership the U.S. will consider, if any, will depend on what European unity turns out to be.

3. Before there is any partnership at all the whole idea will become a national discussion and get a long going over in Congress.

QUOTES JEFFERSON

At least twice in the 1960 campaign Kennedy, dwelling on the magic attractiveness of independence and freedom, quoted Thomas Jefferson's phrase about the infectiousness of the "disease of liberty."

The president, who clings to phrases which catch his fancy, used the Jefferson phrase again Wednesday. And again he emphasized the appeal of freedom and independence.

Kennedy flew Wednesday morning from Washington to Philadelphia, where, at Independence Hall, he called for an international declaration of interdependence — a partnership with a united Europe.

Kennedy likened the coming together of the 13 original colonies with the efforts to unify Western Europe. This comparison and his choice of the birthplace of the U.S. independence for his remarks underlined that.

'Electronic Lock' Prevents Accidental A-Arms Firing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has informed its European allies of the successful development of a new, secret electronic lock which will be used to reinforce safeguards against the accidental firing of nuclear weapons.

President Kennedy is expected to ask Congress soon for an appropriation of funds to complete work on the device, start manufacture and begin installation in nuclear weapons.

The allies were told through the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, it was learned, that the new electronic lock will broaden the margin of safety in nuclear weapons control systems, and strengthen the exercise of direct control over weapons by top commanders.

The device is described as an electro-mechanical system controlled by a radio signal to be sent from a command headquarters remote from the actual missile site.

In effect, the device in its normal position makes a break in the electrical circuit necessary to the firing of the nuclear warhead. It couldn't be fired until an authorized commander dispatched the necessary coded radio signal that would operate the device.

The device itself would not do the firing, but it would control the "arming" of the warhead.

By DICK WEST

Bend an Ear, Brother

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The recent controversy over alleged "muzzling" at the Pentagon has a counterpart on Capitol Hill which might be defined as "babbling."

It involves the tendency of Congressional witnesses to open the floodgates of profanity when they are invited, or obtain permission, to testify at committee hearings.

The problem has become so acute as to induce one toy company to design a "witness doll." You wind it up and it bends your ear.

It is my theory that many witnesses work on space rates. That is, they are paid to present the views of various groups under a scale based on the number of words they can get into the printed record.

Be that as it may, there is no doubt that babbling is burdensome to the committees. Over the years, some of the best minds in Congress have grappled with the question of how to curtail it.

Suggestions have been made for building trap doors under the witness chairs and for installing devices that would automatically signal a fire drill when testimony exceeded a certain length.

These proposals, however, seem inconsistent with the basic right of a citizen to exercise his tongue, and none has been adopted.

West

Now along comes Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, an ingenious Democrat from Minnesota, with what I regard as the ideal cure for galloping verbosity.

While talking with a group of reporters the other day, McCarthy noted that the Senate finance committee, of which he is a member, is preparing for hearings on President Kennedy's trade program.

Past experience indicates that the hearings will run for several weeks. But McCarthy has devised a plan which, if adopted, undoubtedly would shorten them by as much as 75 per cent.

Simply stated, it would require each witness to sit through the testimony of all the other witnesses.

McCarthy figures that if witnesses were forced to listen to each other they would voluntarily begin to fester their vocal cords out of a mutual desire for self preservation.

Unfortunately, however, McCarthy's plan doesn't deal with the related problem of committee members who question witnesses at great length and then disappear.

To be truly effective, it would have to be expanded to require that each member sit through the questioning by all the other members.

You can bet that would make a member think twice before asking a question, which could improve brevity by as much as 200 per cent.

Under present conditions, some of them don't even think once.

HOME GARDEN

Mauve, Scarlet Unusual Blend

The color scarlet-red is a trifle difficult to accommodate in an established garden of moderate size, but a chance association in the perennial beds lately has provided a wholly surprising harmony.

Lynhis chalcidion, variously known as the Jerusalem cross, Maltese cross and Scarlet-lightning has been blooming with Erigeron speciosus, known also as a Michaelmas daisy.

Strange as it may sound, the scarlet lynhis does not fight with the rich mauve of the erigeron, since the latter is also a clear color.

Of course, the plentiful green foliage of both plants aids in harmonizing the transition from scarlet to mauve, but even at that, I realize it wouldn't be everybody's choice in color scheme.

Individually, the scarlet lynhis stands about three feet high on stout leafy stems which snap off at the base in a summer gale, so that it is not a plant for an open, windy spot. The round heads of brilliant blossoms will be four or five inches across on established plants, with smaller heads coming later in the season.

There are many kinds of erigeron, but the particular one which looks pleasant with the lynhis is a selected form of E. speciosus. It is compact in habit, about 18 inches high, and the large, daisy-like flowers make a dense head as much as eight inches across.

These two plants are perfectly hardy perennials which will give an increasing display for about five years. They will then need to be lifted, divided into small pieces and reset in a group to provide an almost continuous show from early June until frost.

If you already have the plants in the garden try their colors together in a bouquet, and if they don't offend your artistic sense, cut them back in September and move them closer together.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Hollow Words, But Kind

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

It may astonish Canadians to discover that the federal government has been engaged in a "constructive" two-year program which has accompanied the rise to recent all-time business highs.

mistic economic news these days, the report is of interest. Reviewing constructive fiscal changes of the past two years, Canada General president, W. F. Shelley notes, "Canada first increased its money supply by 15 per cent. This and corollary action served to eliminate the high penalty on the Canadian currency."

Mr. Shelley refrains from mentioning that the "corollary action" consisted of nearly stripping the country of its gold and foreign currency reserves as the government guessed very badly that pressure on the dollar would be upwards rather than down.

Split Shares Mean Greater Investment

A principal reason for companies splitting their shares is to make it easier for people to buy them.

A case in point is Dominion Stores Ltd., which split its shares five-to-one effective last Aug. 1.

This meant, at the time, that an investor could buy one of the company's shares for around $15 instead of around $75.

True, he would have had just as much ownership in the company by buying one old share at $75 as in buying five new shares at $15 each. But the small investor is much more likely to buy five shares at $15 than one at $75 or 10 instead of two, and so on up.

Testimony was this given at Dominion Stores' annual meeting Wednesday. Thomas G. McCormack, president, stated that from June 1, 1961, prior to the sub-division, the number of shareholders has grown from 3,772 to 8,550, an increase of more than 126 per cent.

WAIT TOO LONG

An influential body of investment opinion holds that Canadian companies have tended to allow their shares to go too high a price on the stock market before splitting.

In the past there has been an element of so-called "prestige" in this. Some companies apparently have felt that it sounded better to have a high stock market price tag on their shares, especially in comparison with other companies in the same business. The chief effect, however, appears to have been to limit the number of shareholders and to lessen the popularity of the company's stock in the market place.

TAKE LONG, HARD LOOK AT COSTS, CBC TOLD

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Canadian Broadcasting Corporation has been asked to take a long hard look at its operational expenditures and save money wherever possible.

This may mean the dropping of some programs not considered absolutely necessary to the national broadcasting service and the shaving of expenses. There will be a revision of some programming plans.

A request has gone forward to the management of the CBC asking it to review its operational budget, bearing in mind the government's desire to reduce expenditures wherever feasible under the new austerity program. A spokesman for the CBC said today the word had been received from the treasury board.

He stressed however that there had been no mention made of the CBC cutting its capital expenditures. Consequently the corporation as yet has taken no steps to issue "stop work" orders on its plans to build new headquarters at Toronto and Montreal.

Hydro Plan Revived With Lowered Costs

B.C. Hydro chairman announced Wednesday a 250-mile transmission line from Bridge River to Prince George will definitely be built, but costs will be cut.

Last week the $15,000,000 project was shelved because of higher interest rates and rising costs as a result of Ottawa's austerity drive.

VCs to Hold Reunion; Pearkes Can't Attend

LONDON (Reuters) — Holders of the Victoria Cross from all parts of the world will hold their reunion here July 17. Nine holders of the highest British award for bravery in action will come from Canada and two from the United States.

(Lieut. Gov. George Pearkes, only VC holder on Vancouver Island, will be unable to attend because of commitments in B.C.).

Jose Capablanca was chess champion of Cuba at age 12 and world champion at age 33, in 1921.

But now hydro chiefs say "We will meet our commitments" to supply power to new pulp mills in the north.

MEET COMMITMENTS

A statement from co-chairmen Dr. Gordon Shrum and Dr. H. L. Keenleyside said:

"We will meet our commitments for delivery of power to the Prince George area but are studying the situation further with a view of developing a more efficient construction schedule with relation to cost of money factors."

"This is possible because there is some leeway on the delivery date of power to the area."

The power was due for delivery next year.

Japanese Invited To Invest in U.S.

TOKYO (AP) — The Kennedy administration has invited Japan to invest in building factories in the United States.

The invitation was announced by the Japanese foreign ministry and confirmed by a spokesman for the U.S. embassy.

Wichita, Kan., Wilmington, N.C., Maine, New Jersey and areas on the west coast were mentioned as regions where industrialization might be expanded with Japanese funds.

Such a development would help correct a U.S. adverse balance of payments situation, sources said. Japanese exports to the United States last year totalled nearly $1,500,000,000. Imports from the United States totalled $1,200,000,000.

PRODUCES ABROAD

Japanese industry has been working on a theory that it must produce abroad to hold its overseas markets. Plants have been established in southeast Asia, Latin America and on a limited scale in Europe.

A U.S. embassy spokesman said Commerce Secretary Lather Hodges had first suggested that the Japanese might be interested in such investment opportunities during a U.S.-Japan cabinet-level, economic conference at Hakone, north of Tokyo last fall.

Since then, he added, the embassy here has been following up the matter with the foreign ministry.

The general Japanese reaction was one of surprise that a country as industrially advanced as the United States should seek such help from abroad.

Japanese business sources said the plan was still in an embryonic stage.

SAFETY BELTS MANDATORY

LONDON (AP) — The British government will require all new automobiles to be fitted with safety belts for the driver and front-seat passenger.

John Hay, parliamentary secretary to the transport ministry, said statistics showed safety belts could reduce injuries in road crashes by about half.

A transport ministry spokesman later explained that it would not be compulsory for motorists to wear the belts. Compulsion to fasten the belts is considered unenforceable by law.

You have undoubtedly found that State Express 555 Filter Kings are almost a half inch longer than regular cigarettes. In fact, there isn't a longer cigarette in Canada. You were probably more than pleasantly surprised to find that 555's smoked a little cooler and gave you a taste that is richer, smoother and noticeably more rewarding.

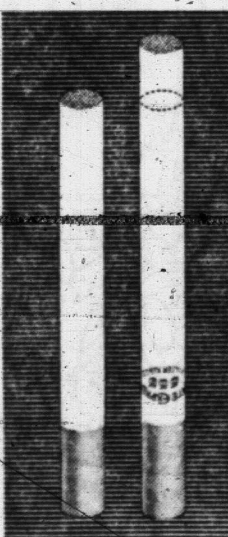

Why?

We found that certain tobaccos were particularly well suited to this new continental king-size length. These we reserved for State Express 555 Filter Kings. Then we added a superb filter and the world famous State Express manufacturing techniques. In combination they give you an elegant cigarette of outstanding quality.

A cigarette, however, is a personal thing—and if you haven't tried State Express 555 Filter Kings, pick up a carton and... join the club.

Non-Ops Ask Wage Increase, Job Security

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada's non-operating railway unions put a price tag Wednesday on their new contract demands—almost $46,000,000 a year for wages plus an additional $14,000,000 a year in 10 years for their job security program.

The figures were made public for the first time since the contract demands were presented last December, at the opening session of a federal conciliation board set up to try to find a compromise solution to the deadlocked dispute.

The union brief, made it clear the non-ops have tied their demand for a 22-cent-an-hour wage increase to the durable goods standard. That is an average of wages paid in several basic Canadian industries. It has been rejected for years by the railways as a yardstick to measure what the non-ops should be paid.

The railways' counter proposal to the unions was for an indefinite wage increase—something rejected out of hand by the union negotiators.

There was no immediate official reaction from the railways to the unions' arguments to support their controversial job security program—a plan previously decry by the railways as meaning economic ruin for them.

The board, under the chairmanship of Mr. Justice G. B. Monro of the British Columbia Supreme Court, is expected to sit for about eight weeks before it starts working on its report. Its findings will not be binding on either party.

B.C. Loses Court Bid On Rail Move

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal board of transport commissioners has turned down a bid by British Columbia to have the CPR line in the Fraser Canyon diverted so a "fortuitous" part of the Trans-Canada Highway could be straightened out.

The board ruled it did not have the jurisdiction to order the diversion of the railway as sought by the B.C. government.

The B.C. highways department had applied for a board order authorizing encroachment on the CPR's right-of-way for about a mile near Yale, B.C. Re-location of the railway line was also envisaged.

The CPR opposed the application, arguing that the board has no power to make such an order without the consent of the railway.

City Labor Council Endorses Medicare

Victoria Labor Council Wednesday night voted to tell Premier Lloyd of Saskatchewan it endorses his medicare program.

John Nicol, retail clerk's agent, spoke against doctors' protests over controls that would be imposed on their profession by the scheme.

Anti-NDP Newspapers Criticized

Disappointment that New Democratic Party candidates secured only 12 per cent of eligible Victoria and Saanich votes in the federal election was reported to Victoria Labor Council Wednesday night.

Political education chairman Fred Bevis, speaking on the June 18 contest, regretted that only about 12,000 of an eligible 100,000 voters in the two ridings felt themselves "sufficiently interested or connected with the working class" to vote NDP.

He told 25 delegates representing 18 organizations that he concurred with Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, who last month charged the press with a bias against the New Democratic Party.

SERVICE TO CANADA

"I can only conclude that the people who own newspapers are not interested in the views of the working people being disseminated," Mr. Bevis said.

"If we can only get the press to tell the truth we will be doing a service to Canada," he said, urging unionists to work for better relations with news media.

Mr. Bevis said he was "not too interested" personally in editorials "because they are written by people not too conversant with the facts. They read other newspapers."

Liquor Consumption Going Steadily Up

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians are gradually drinking their way to the $1,000,000,000-a-year mark.

Sales of liquor, beer and wine increased three per cent to $925,134,000 in the year that ended March 31, 1961, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Governments got more than half of it—$473,000,000, not including sales taxes. Of that figure, Ottawa took $235,908,000 in the form of excise taxes and import duties.

The volume excluding Prince Edward Island, which didn't report—also went up. Figures with the previous year's sales volumes in brackets.

TOUGH JOB BUT HE LIKES IT

Tourist Guide Psychology Student—He Needs to Be

By ARTHUR MAYSE

A husky young American with bags under his eyes sagged into an Empress Hotel lobby chair Wednesday, and until a luggage difficulty claimed his attention, described a job which combines the roles of shepherd, diplomat, bridge expert, dancing partner, and occasionally male nurse.

His name is Sam Eadie, he is an escort for Fun Tours of Los Angeles, and he would like nothing better than a long sleep.

"I have them in all ages, sizes and sizes," said Mr. Eadie, who lives in Tacoma when he isn't conveying tourists from every state in the Union on holidays-by-bus.

'NICEST PEOPLE'

"My youngest this trip is twelve, and my oldest a San Francisco architect of 89. I've got widows and widowers, bachelors and spinsters, and a doll of a grandmother taking her granddaughter on the tour, as a graduation present.

"I like my job," Mr. Eadie continued, following one of his charges with an alert eye, "and these are the nicest kind of people. But I wish I could average more than five hours' sleep. Last night, for instance, some of the kids wanted me to take them bowling. Tonight I'll probably be making a making a fourth at bridge with the older women or dancing with the young ones."

SOME LIKE THE RAIN

California, Sam Eadie said, sends more bus tour fans to British Columbia than any other state. They like our green country, many of them even like our rain which falls steadily in stead of coming down with a swoosh.

"A lot of our patrons tell me they intend to come back here," he added. "Even better than the country, they like your courtesies and friendliness."

A passenger who wanted a side excursion arranged bore down on him and he rose wearily to resume the grind.

"The cardinal rule of an escort," Mr. Eadie said over his shoulder, "is to remember that it's their vacation, not yours. I try to do that, but believe me, there are times when I'm glad my minor at Charles Wright Academy is psychology."

FIGURES TELL STORY

Figures supplied by Norman E. Kennedy, Empress Hotel assistant manager, indicate that between Easter and September, more than 20,000 bus tour vacationists will have dallied in Victoria—for at least one day. This month alone, the Empress will provide food, lodging and services for a bumper 8,000.

Mr. Kennedy predicts a record-smashing year for this branch of tourism.

"We are benefiting tremendously from the Seattle World's Fair," he said. "They're coming in at close to 300 a day. In August our bus traffic will total 7,000 persons compared with 4,000 for the corresponding month last year."

The conducted tour season snowballs through May and June to a July peak, holds with only a slight decline through August, then slopes off after Labor Day.

Individual travellers, says Mr. Kennedy, are often repeaters. He mentioned a woman school principal from Eureka, California, who for the past several years has brought her sixth-graders north to Victoria by bus. "Mexico and Hawaii send the occasional contingent, and, at times interpreter's services are needed. One busload of Russian timber experts brought their own interpreter. The Russian visitors were assigned rooms up and down the hotel corridor from the interpreter's, and all calls were put through to him.

Four hundred and seventy members of Old Age Pensioners No. 1 held an excursion to Vancouver last Thursday in 12 chartered buses. The party left at 8 a.m. and returned at 9:30 p.m.

Canadian National Railway Veterans' Association will hold its annual picnic on Friday at 2 p.m. in Beacon Hill Park. In case of inclement weather, the meeting will be held in Knights of Pythias Hall, Cormorant Street. Members should bring their own lunch. Refreshments will be served.

Air Commodore James B. Millward, a former commandant of the Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, has been appointed air officer commanding the RCAF air materiel command, it was announced in Ottawa Wednesday.

Saanich may initiate weekly garbage collection this year instead of waiting until 1963. Council Tuesday decided to consider at its next meeting the need for stepping up the garbage service this year after comptroller-treasurer John Tribe questioned the advisability of delaying the matter until next year.

The haddock, which provides a large catch in the North Atlantic, may grow to a maximum weight of about 16 pounds.

GOLF SCHOOL

By SAM SNEAD

RIGHT ARM IMPORTANT

Don't ever get the idea that the right arm is unimportant in the golf swing.

The right arm acts as a sort of hinge in your swing. It supplies the power and can help you develop the "inside-out" as of the swing that is so desirable.

At the point shown in today's illustration, note how the inside of the right forearm is turning upward. That's a sign that the right arm is serving the proper function as the hinge of the swing.

It will keep the right elbow in close to the right hip and right elbow in tight, the swing will not permit the swing's arc is kept inside, too.

RIGHT ARM SERVES AS SWING HINGE

Marty Gets Big Chance To Make Stew of Laver

WIMBLEDON, Eng. (AP) —

Defending champion Rod Laver and the 21-year-old dark horse, Martin Mulligan, swept to straight set victories Wednesday for an all-Australian men's singles final and the Americans suffered another jolt in the all-England tennis championships.

The U.S. doubles champions, Chuck McKinley of St. Ann, Mo., and Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., went down before an unranked Yugoslav team, Boris Jovanovic and Nicola Pilić, 4-6, 6-2, 8-6, 6-2.

This was just one in a series of U.S. reverses which has seen the men representatives eliminated before the quarter-finals and only one woman — Mrs. Karen Hantze Susman — survive as far as the semi-finals in that division.

MULLIGAN EASY WINNER

Laver, playing at the peak of his form, and Mulligan, showing surprising strength, eliminated Australia's Fraser brothers, Neale and John.

The 'bandy-legged' Laver reaching the Wimbledon final for the fourth straight year, cut down former champion Neale Fraser 10-8, 6-1, 7-5.

Mulligan, unseeded and virtually unnoticed, powered his way past Neale's kid brother, John, a Melbourne doctor on a holiday, 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

Laver, now a more prohibitive favorite than ever, and Mulligan, who has spent the last several months in Britain, play Friday for the championship. The women's semi-finals were played today with the final Saturday.

LONE U.S. HOPE

In this competition, the 19-year-old married coed from Chula Vista, Calif., Mrs. Susman, was the lone remaining U.S. singles hope. She played left-handed Ann Haydon of Britain. Maria Bueno of Brazil, a previous two-time winner, faced Mrs. Vera Suko of Czechoslovakia, upset winner over second-seeded Darlene Hard of the U.S.

TEEN-AGE CANADA

Teen-Age Talents At the Barbecue

By JACK HUTTON

An 18-year-old friend gave me a startling reason for being happy about the end of his final exams. "Now," he announced importantly, "I can get down to some serious cooking."

What, I asked, invade the kitchen?

Not at all, he replied haughtily. He was just getting back to his hobby of cooking outdoors where so many teen-age males have discovered hidden talents with the campfire and barbecue food.

A great idea, he said. Every teen-ager should plan some weekend night during the summer when the gang can explore the mysteries of coals of corn and hamburgers.

Does one have to be a real cook, I asked my friend. "Not really," he replied. "You can get as complicated as you like, but because everything tastes better outdoors you could just make toast and get raves."

"First, think of your fire," he went on. "If a beach is available, find where you can build a fire and where no one will mind a bit of singing. Practise building a fire from scratch just if you're not used to it."

"If you're at home, the backyard is great. A 24-inch barbecue grill which sells for about $8 is ideal but you can buy other models for even less than $2. There's a minimum of mess and the gang thinks you're a fantastic chef."

First Menu

What, I asked the young master chef, should be a beginning cook's first menu? "Hot dogs and potatoes," he said promptly. "And don't laugh, because this bowls anyone over. Maybe you might add corn."

"Wait until a bed of coals has formed and bury washed potatoes in aluminum foil. If it's in the barbecue don't do a thing until your coals have turned white and are giving their best steady heat."

"Try experimenting the first night with hot dogs wrapped in aluminum foil thrown among the coals. Roughly 30 minutes will give you a winner with a scorched coat but a tender interior. It's quite a treat."

Hot dogs and hamburgers, he added, can be cooked quickly on top of the fire and also taste great. "I like to use a barbecue holder for four hamburgers," he said. "It cost less than $3 and you can get one for less than $1 for hot dogs."

Experiment

How quickly does one advance, I asked meekly. "Always experiment," he almost shouted. "On the second cook-out wrap bacon around the wieners and slowly turn them. Also try corn in the aluminum foil."

An advanced teen-age cook, he went on, should attempt the spectacular sometime before the end of the summer. "Why not," he asked with a gleam in his eye, "a shish kebabs which is easier than it looks." "You need a skewer or a spit of some kind, but after that you simply alternate two-inch cubes of lean lamb meat on the skewer with quarters of onion, whole mushrooms, quarters of tomatoes and slices of green pepper in the same way you string beads.

"Keep turning your shish kebabs over the fire until it is all tender. This should take about 20 minutes. And make sure it's evenly cooked."

His final advice: "Get the girl friend to cook if you can't."

Peace Campaign

Two Mount Royal brothers who some time ago launched their own "crusade for peace" through pen pals and recorded tapes, are setting up a Canadian branch of the American "People to People" university program.

Glenn and Keith Martin decided some time ago that the only way to encourage peace was to increase the contact and understanding among young people around the world.

Several hundred young correspondents were soon linked in a number of countries. Their movement even includes a branch of African students.

The two were recently approached by the American movement which has so far concentrated on making contact with foreign students attending American colleges. The movement now is interested in making more contacts overseas.

Said Glenn: "We expect to send large numbers of Canadian students overseas next summer." Air fares have been reduced through the intervention of U.S. Attorney General Robert Kennedy.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — The European crowd thinks that Liz Taylor tossed away her whole career when she did that bareback scene on a boat with Richard Burton—which was shot by some sneaky but gifted photographer in Ischia. The photo got caught by Liz with her top down claims he has others more daring—and movie experts are saying, "Liz can't get by with THIS!" (Liz wound up her major scenes finally; from now on, she's just around as Dickie's fan club president.)

Yves Montand, onetime beau of Marilyn Monroe, and wife Simone Signoret are spitting, and there are divorce rumors. But their intimates say: "Nothing will happen, it's just like Dickie and Sibyl!" ... A chap accosted bearded playwright Paddy Chayefsky on Fire Island and wanted to arrest him, claiming he resembled one of the nation's Most Wanted 10. "What would a criminal be doing on Fire Island?" retorted Paddy ... and went his way free and unfettered.

Sure, Sophia Loren's husband, Carlo Ponti, is a little older, but what a delightful guy! He charmed everybody at the big Four Seasons soiree, after the opening of "Boccaccio 70" ... and you understood why Sophia goes for him instead of some young, handsome dillard ... Joe E. Lewis flashes from Las Vegas: "Show me a girl who's always on her toes and I'll show you a very tired ballerina."

"Is Jackie Gleason as great an all-round entertainer as Sammy Davis Jr.?" Is Jerry Lewis ... does Jack Paar belong in the Show Biz Hall of Fame? These are questions we're still trying to decide as we count the ballots in the contest we started months ago ... What happens when we columnist get old? Do we get into our three-dottage? As somebody said about columnists, "Wind up the columnist doll—and it goes nuts."

Eartha Kitt was singing pleasantly, so she thought, at the Plaza Persian Room when Plato Skouras, Spyros' son dozed off. "Sorry I'm keeping you up," Eartha said. Next day came a rose and a note, "Awake or asleep, I think you're the greatest singer."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL ... Jason Robards, who turns down lucrative TV offers, did a commercial for the N.Y. Mets—free (cause he's a baseball fan) ... Astronaut John Glenn and his family saw "No Strings," visited the cast backstage. Beverly Aadland's ma, Florence, was asked to do an advice-to-the-lovelorn column for a magazine. ... Linda Darnell is off to a Madrid cafe engagement ... Judy Holliday went on a crash diet to lose weight before her TV Guide Award appearance.

Gina Lollobrigida has her horse, Roma, up for sale—$1,125 ... Betty Johnson's quickie bit in "Advise and Consent"—coming out of Peter Lawford's bedroom—got her more film roles ...

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: "We held a monthly meeting of our club," writes Nonnee Coan, "and after hearing the financial report, we also held the treasure."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: At today's prices, it looks like the nickel has gone the way of the other buffaloes. —Bellevue (O.) Examiner.

EARL'S PEARLS: Advice to wives: When your husband talks about your beauty, make sure he isn't reminiscing.

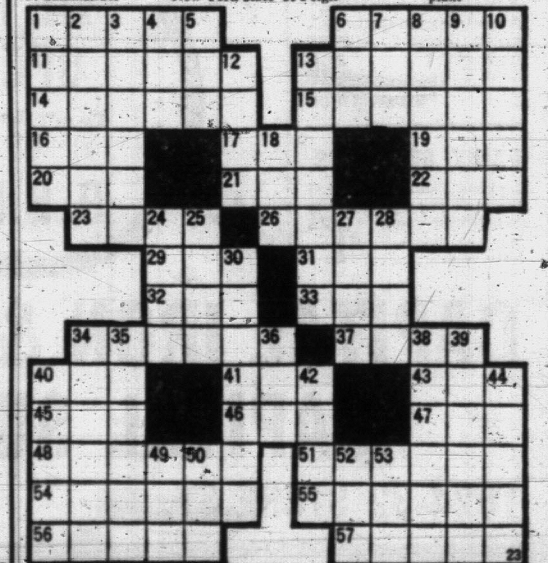

Today's TV shows, says Jim Backus of "Talent Scouts," are usually skin-diving, the roaring '20s or westerns: "Either flippers, flappers or giddyappers." ... That's earl, brother.

ISLAND DIGEST

14 Victoria Daily Times
THURS., JULY 5, 1962

3 Injured As Car Hits Power Pole

COURTENAY—Three persons were hospitalized following a collision with a power pole on Comox Avenue, Comox, Wednesday night. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $1,000 and to the pole at $125.

Injured were driver, Ronald C. Parsley, 27, Bedwin and a Mr. Hook, all of Comox Air Base. The latter pair were taken to St. Joseph's General Hospital, Comox, and later transferred to the air base hospital where Mr. Parsley had already been taken.

Vancouver Island men scored heavily in the Albany Timber Carnival Wednesday.

Brothers Ardy, John and Jube Wickheim of Sooke, B.C., finished 1-2-3 in the men's log-rolling competition, with Ardy sharing honors with Jim Herron, Gardiner, Ore., in the jousting contest.

NANAIMO (CP)—City Council has delayed for a week the approval of a bylaw allowing shopkeepers to stay open six days a week during July and August.

Council granted a request to delay implementation until merchants may state their case against the bylaw.

COURTENAY—The first civic holiday in the history of the city was granted Wednesday night by city aldermen in response to a joint request from the Centennial Committee and the Comox Valley Exhibition Association.

The day will mark the celebrations commemorating the landing of the first settlers at the mouth of the Puntledge River from HMS Grappler 100 years ago.

The day chosen for the holiday is August 31 when a re-enactment of the landing will be staged.

NANAIMO (CP)—A coroner's jury ruled Tuesday night on a drowning incident that the coroner described as a "wolf, wolf."

The jury said Dale Jerome Liptak, 20, of Nanaimo, died June 19 in Westwood Lake as a result of suffocation by drowning. They were told his swimming partner called for help but was ignored, when people on the beach told a would-be rescuer it was all in play.

Coroner Dr. H. W. Lewis said: "Cries of wolf, people shouting for help in fun, are one of the most serious menaces on beaches today."

LADYSMITH—Application into the Turtle Club has been made here on behalf of Bill Davidson, whose hard hat warded off a blow from a six-pound rock during a blasting operation in Comox Logging and Railway Company operations.

Davidson was among a crew which had set an explosive charge and had driven about 1,200 feet away in a crummy to await the blast. There was timber between the blast area and the crummy but the rock was tossed over that and penetrated through the vehicle's roof.

The hard hat was cracked by the blow and Davidson received a cut forehead from the hat's rim plus a stiff neck for a few days. The Turtle Club accepts only persons whose lives have been saved by a hard hat.

CAMPBELL RIVER—Elk River Timber Co. has moved its purchasing office from Vancouver to Camp 8. Change is effective this week.

REFUSES TO ADMIT $2.5 HOARD LEFT IN AUTO TRUNK

Millionaire Bookie 'Shabby Nickel-Nursing Loner'

JOSEPH MORIARTY
... 10 kinds of pills

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP)—Police picture gambler Joseph (the Newsboy) Moriarty as a shabby, nickel-nursing loner with a gift for acquiring money but no knack for enjoying it.

They believe he is the owner of a $2,400,000 cash hoard found by accident in the trunk of an abandoned auto here Tuesday.

Moriarty, 32, bookie and numbers racket operator now doing a two to three-year term in New Jersey State Prison on a gambling conviction, isn't saying.

He has shown an amazing indifference to money on previous occasions when it might have involved him legally.

Several years ago he was shot. He drove himself to a hospital and checked himself in. Police went through his blood-smeared car and found $3,000 cash in it.

'IT'S NOT MINE'

"It's not mine," Moriarty said. "I never saw it before." The background of the incident was not disclosed.

On another occasion, detectives picked him up on a police charge as he stood beside an auto. In the car was $11,000.

"I don't have anything to do with it," he said with a shrug. "It's not my car."

He has abandoned hundreds of thousands of dollars," said James F. McDonald, deputy chief of Jersey City Police in referring to past incidents involving the gambler.

Moriarty started as a newsboy at the age of 13, selling papers around Journal Square in Jersey City.

TAKES BETS

It wasn't long before he discovered he could make far more money taking bets than by selling papers.

Since he made that discovery 39 years ago, he has been arrested 28 times on gambling charges and sentenced to three jail terms, including the one he is serving now. Previously he had served a two-month term and a one-year term.

He made big money from his gambling—police have estimated his operations totalled $10,000,000 a year in recent years—but he never seemed to derive much enjoyment from it.

Unlike the happy-go-lucky gamblers of fiction, Moriarty was pictured as a dour, ascetic man with few friends and little to say except about his illnesses—some real and some imaginary.

When arrested last time, he had bottles of 10 different kinds of pills in his pockets.

He never went to nightclubs or lived high. He neither smoked nor drank. If you owed him two cents, one acquaintance said, he'll haunt you till he collected it.

LEARNS OF FIND

Hudson County Prosecutor Lawrence A. Whipple and three aides spent 15 minutes with Moriarty at the prison and told him of the find.

"You've just lost $2,500,000," Whipple said he told the prisoner.

"He listened deadpan," Whipple related. "Then he said, 'you are telling me this, Mr. Prosecutor.' He would neither admit nor deny ownership of anything that was found."

The fortune at issue, ranging in denominations from $1,000 bills down to $5, was found Tuesday by two unidentified carpenters in the trunk of a 1947 Plymouth housed in a dilapidated garage.

ARTHUR MAYSE

A good grey editor now with God told me some few years ago that the way to write anything is to jump into the middle and pull the ends in after. So here I sit in the middle, reviewing a love affair with Victoria that began on a sunny morning when I was a plump, untidy child in a sailor suit, dispatched by my grandmother with my grandfather on an errand of considerable urgency.

The plumbing in the little bungalow on Cambridge St., never too dependable, had let go in a bathroom geyser of spectacular proportions. There was no telephone.

"Take your foot in your hand," said grandma to grandpa—both of them Ontario-born but Irish as the pigs of Dublin—"and fetch a plumber."

"Yes, my dear," said grandfather, a calm, bearded man. He lifted his hat off the front hall table. With his cane in one hand and me by the other, he set off with grandmother's "Hurry!" and the splashing of water to speed him.

We walked briskly for half a block. Then, by degrees, the pace slackened. There were roses to be admired, a multitude of them. By one house with a particularly florid display, grandpa paused to discourse on roses.

We moved on from there.

I was torn away from Victoria soon after, but home in bleak and bitter winter Manitoba I carried a dream of a city where roses bloomed and the winds blew southerly, where ice cream cones were larger and more flavorful than anywhere else, and people didn't hurry even with a burst pipe spraying a bathroom ceiling.

Some day, I told myself, I would go back to that lovely town.

I did, too many times. From Vancouver, on newspaper assignments, or on day-trips with my girl. The magic was there, and waiting; we always went home reluctantly.

Later, years after I coaxed that girl into matrimony and took her off to the tiger cities of the east, we'd get homesick for gorse and golden broom, for the jodine tang of the kelp beds, for roses and the dazzle of sunlight on blue-tinted water. At such times we would cross the country at hellish inconvenience and expense for a few days in Victoria. We acquired children and brought them with us. They agreed the ice cream cones were larger here, and wanted to stay.

Suddenly—the four of us lining the rail of a Vancouver-bound steamer—we decided that to stay would be an excellent idea.

"You write a serial this winter," Win told me. "Sell it, and we'll move in the spring."

I did, and we did. That was 11 years ago. We know now, that the ice cream cones aren't really all that much larger, and that Victoria's roses have their thorns. But never for a day or a minute have we regretted our decision.

And that, I believe, pulls in the ends. I've written a column of sorts, and hope to do so hereafter on the days when my friend Monte Roberts isn't.

Something has happened to that dashing young reporter, by the way. He's greayer around the muzzle than the colleague I remember from the years when we helped keep The Vancouver Daily Providence afloat.

But so, Monte tells me, am I!

TOPICS OF THE DAY

City fireman Robert Christianson suffered minor face burns while answering a fire call at 512 Ribbet Street shortly after midnight.

Fireman Christianson was checking a badly smoking oil heater when it blew back. He was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital and released.

Well-known Bishop Strachan Chapel Choir from Toronto will present a concert at 12.30 p.m. Friday at Victoria College. The 48-voice choir later will give a concert in Butchart Gardens.

Four cases have been scheduled for the fall jury assizes opening Oct. 1.

Charged are: Stephen Cassidy, rape; William Stefanson, breaking and entering; Keith Stirling, uttering; Peter Chong (alias Wing Ming alias Ming Chong) attempted forgery.

Invitations to the Centennial Celebrations Ball July 27 were sent out to about 2,000 people today. Officials urged those who do not receive invitations, but who would like to attend, to make reservations at the Centennial Office, EV 6-1445, as soon as possible.

A new type of parking restriction was recommended today by city works committee to eliminate all-day parking in zones limited to two hours.

The new category would be "residential parking only." It would be used on residential streets which now have two-hour parking restrictions but result in numerous complaints from home owners.

The problem arises where a non-resident parks his car in such zones, goes to work and returns every two hours to move the vehicle a couple of feet.

City finance committee today recommended that the city buy three lots, which it sold for $450 in 1945, at their present valuation of $15,000 for use in creating a clover leaf at the proposed intersection of Blanshard and Finlayson which will be built to service the planned Mayfair Shopping Centre. Committee was told that the city should be able to recover the cost by selling an unneeded portion of the property when the roadwork is completed.

strolling. In the next block we met a friend, also bearded, and the two dignified old gentlemen paused to set the world right while I stalked a swallowtail butterfly along a border of heavenly blue delphinium.

The swallowtail eluded me, but before boredom could set in, grandfather ended his visit. He took my hand again and we wandered on, coming presently to a magical little store that provided an ice cream cone. We next passed a pleasant hour or two feeding ducks in Beacon Hill Park, after which we sauntered toward home with a detour to inspect the late broom on the cliffs.

Back on Cambridge Street, sun by this time westerling, I said to grandfather, "We forgot to get the plumber."

"Why, so we did," he answered mildly, "so we did! But your grandmother is a capable woman, she'll have the matter in hand."

CHECKING FORM for the four-day teen-age drivers' Rodeo starting in Victoria today are these four provincial finalists. Steering the bucket and making the hand signal is George

Canada-Wide Rodeo Final Starts Here

Twelve teenage drivers from seven provinces arrived in Victoria Wednesday night for the national finals of the annual teen-age safe-driving rodeo sponsored by Junior Chamber of Commerce across the country.

A four-day hitch, the finals involve road and skill tests, a written examination covering safe-driving knowledge, a psycho-physical examination testing reaction and perception under simulated driving conditions, a personal interview to assess general attitude and personal characteristics, and an aptitude scale to measure attitude toward safe driving conditions.

The written examinations began this morning after a briefing in the Empress Hotel.

REAL THING SATURDAY Friday is the day for psycho-physical tests, aptitude scale test, personal interview and road check.

Saturday comes the all-important skill test—handling cars in confined quarters over designated tracks—preceded by a briefing session.

It is to be held at the Esquimalt Sports Centre parking lot at 1.30.

Awards are to be presented Sunday at a banquet in the Empress.

Not that it's all work. These dozen are the cream of over 30,000 teen-agers who took part in local and provincial competitions across the country in the last few months, and the host Victoria Jaycees are pulling out all the stops.

Today there was a luncheon at the Princess Mary restaurant vessel, a naval tour, and tonight a civic reception and dinner, and a civic evening.

BEACH PARTY Friday, the teen-agers will go swimming at the Crystal Garden, going on to a beach party and barbecue at Point No Point in the evening.

A parade, dinner and dance are slated for Saturday, and a tour of the city is arranged for Sunday before the awards banquet in the evening.

Norm Walters of the Halifax junior chamber of commerce will be chief judge of the rodeo, assisted by Inspector Brooke Douglass of Victoria city police traffic division.

Bryan Holliday is chairman of the rodeo committee for the local junior chamber of commerce.

FRIDAY MEETINGS

VICTORIA LIONS CLUB: Empress Hotel, 12 noon. Program: Installation of officers by W. L. Waldie, past international director.

THREE-DAY RCN SALUTE SET AS TRIBUTE FOR CENTENNIAL

The Royal Canadian Navy's three-day salute to Victoria's centennial year will start at 2 p.m. Aug. 9, when a colorful parade steps off through city streets.

Marching units from ship and shore establishments will be led by the band of HMCS Naden and the pipe band of the technical apprentices school.

Leading their own section of the parade will be the Sea Cadet band from HMCS Rainbow corps. Navy equipment will be on display in the parade, plus floats of a serious and humorous nature.

The navy's salute, which will include activities at sea, on land, and in the air, will continue through Aug. 11.

CENTENNIAL WEEK

Downtown Mall Plan For Festival Fun

A Centennial Mall will be constructed in Broad Street between Fort and Broughton as a focal point for displays and entertainment during centennial week, July 28 to August 4, it was announced today.

At one end of the street, which will be blocked off, a stage will be erected with a runway for a fashion parade. In front of the stage will be a continental-style outdoor restaurant.

On Saturday, July 28, the theme in the mall will be the Gay Nineties to start the celebrations. Highland dancing and a massed pipe band exhibition is planned in the evening for this day, also the date of the Highland Games, in Athletic Park.

JOINT SERVICES Sunday will see interdenominational services in the park, while Monday will feature visiting dignitaries from other communities.

The mall will be the scene of a fashion show from 2 to 4 p.m. on Tuesday. Women also will provide pre-pagant entertainment at the park in the evening.

On Wednesday, Indian dances and gymnastic displays will be featured at the mall from 2 to 5 p.m. At the park in the evening, a junior symphony concert will be given.

SURPRISE PARTY On Thursday, Victoria's birthday, there will be a surprise party at City Hall from 8 to 9 a.m., a sunset ceremony before the pagant in the park in the evening, and a bonfire at Clover point at 11 p.m.

Japanese, Chinese and Indian dancing will take place at the mall between 2 and 5 p.m. on Friday. Scandinavian groups will appear at the park before the pagant.

Service clubs will take over both mall and park on the last day of the celebrations. Fireworks will conclude the pagant each night.

QUEEN CONTEST LEADERS NAMED

Leader so far in the race of would-be queens for the centennial crown is Carol Ann Howay, 20, sponsored by the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Centennial Society officials announced today.

Since June 26, sponsors of 43 candidates in the queen contest have been selling tickets to the centennial pagant, to run in the Athletic Park July 28 to August 4, at reduced prices. For every ticket they sell, they receive 1,000 votes toward the centennial crown.

For those ticket stubs turned into centennial headquarters before Tuesday, the candidates received a 25 per cent vote bonus. In addition there is a 20, 10 and 5 per cent bonus before each of the three official counting days left, July 10, 17 and 24 when the contest ends.

The candidate who has gained the most votes by this time will be declared centennial queen and will feature in the pagant. In addition she will win an all-expenses paid trip to Hawaii for two. Ten runners-up also will be named at this time.

Centennial office released names of the contestants categorized into five groups according to the number of votes they obtained at the first count. Names in the first four are:

Category 1: Carol Ann Howay, Jane Bowering, Brenda Lassie, Pat Conrad.

Stores Complain Of Tourist Grab

Sightseeing Operators Get Blame

Sightseeing operators, jockeying for advantage in The Causeway area, have cut off the tourist dollar "at the pass" and downtown merchants are angry.

That's the story city public works committee heard today when it decided to call a special joint meeting next week with all sightseeing operators, the city's special traffic committee and itself.

The row boiled up from two directions.

Several sightseeing concerns, angered by a special concession recently extending the Taffy's free curbside stand, demanded extensions or changes in their locations.

MERCHANTS CUT OFF

At the same time, Ald. Michael Griffin reported downtown merchants are angry because they are being cut off entirely from the foot passenger traffic brought into the Inner Harbor by ferries.

He pointed out that the merchants, who pay heavy taxes on a year-round basis, rarely even see any of the ferry passengers that come over for the afternoon.

The sightseeing services grab them as they come off the boats, tie them up in long tours and return them to the wharves where they pick up some souvenirs and get on the boat, he said.

TERMINAL NEEDED

"Victoria's the only city which allows the sightseeing tours to set up right in the wharf area," said Ald. Griffin. "Every other place makes them start from the downtown area."

He said the city should serve notice now that it will wipe out all free curbside loading stands for the sightseeing firms and require them to obtain their own off-street parking next year.

Another suggestion to the committee was that the city provide a sightseeing terminal on the Cormorant Street parking lot or the Memorial Arena area.

But committee finally decided to call the joint meeting, set for 8 p.m. Tuesday, to try to iron out the differences among individual sightseeing firms and the downtown merchants.

Billy Barker Grave to Get Honor Plaque

A special plaque will be unveiled in a ceremony next Wednesday at the graveside of gold-hunter Billy Barker in Ross Bay Cemetery.

Government and civic officials will attend the ceremony, planned for 8 p.m. and sponsored by the Barkerville Restoration Advisory Committee.

The committee has restored the old Cariboo gold rush town of Barkerville and this year is conducting celebrations of the centenary of its foundation.

Billy Barker, the man who first found gold there a hundred years ago, died at a Victoria old folks' home July 11, 1894.

The plaque on his grave will be unveiled by Lottie Bowron, born at Barkerville, daughter of the first gold commissioner there, and one-time secretary to Sir Richard McBride.

200-PLANE TOFINO FLY-IN MAY SET RECORD FOR B.C.

At least 200 owner-flown planes are expected at a weekend fly-in at Tofino, on the west coast of Vancouver Island, Saturday and Sunday.

Indications are that it will be the largest fly-in ever held in British Columbia.

As precautionary measures, the RCAF Search and Rescue co-ordination centre in Vancouver will station a helicopter at Tofino from noon Saturday until the planes leave Sunday, and department of transport and RCMP have been alerted on a stand-by basis.

Light aircraft from both Canadian and American points of the Pacific Northwest will take part in the fly-in, organized this year by the International Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association.

City May Conduct Garage Hours Vote

City finance committee today recommended that council hold a secret ballot among operators should decide which set of four legal systems would be incorporated in a new bylaw. They range from no closing restrictions to one requiring 6 p.m. closing except by permit.

Committee members agreed a civic-sponsored secret ballot among operators should decide which set of four legal systems would be incorporated in a new bylaw. They range from no closing restrictions to one requiring 6 p.m. closing except by permit.

Recommendation came after independent dealer Alfred F. Kubicek presented a petition urging a bylaw to continue the "open" system under which council imposed no restrictions on hours.

He said the petition was signed by 52 of the 96 city service station operators.

Mayor R. B. Wilson pointed out that under recent legislation—unless city council passes an exemption bylaw—all service stations staying open beyond 3 p.m. are "technically breaking the law. This situation should be regularized."

West Coast Coho Yield Good Harvest

Commercial fishermen are cashing in on a "reasonably good" run of coho salmon off the west coast of Vancouver Island, a federal fisheries officer told the Times today.

The cohos, which with spring salmon provide British Columbia's 2,000 trollers with most of their take, average about five pounds at present. Growth increases rapidly through the summer months.

While fisheries men warn that it's early for any general prediction, they forecast an off year for the Fraser River pinks.

They are also dubious about the important Adams River sockeye run, which may be reduced this year owing to unfavorable estuary conditions when the young fish were feeding their way through the lower reaches of the Fraser.

Among fishermen who scored from the early coho run were the crew of the weather ship St. Catharines. On station 300 miles offshore from Victoria, they landed 300 salmon, four steelhead and 70 perch-like pomfret.

"Fishing has never been this good before," said Werner Frank, boss's mate, when the weather ship arrived home Monday from Station Poppa after her six-week trip. "Other times, we never caught more than eight salmon."

Three-Year Term On Morals Charge

A Port Alberni man was given a three-year jail term by Magistrate William Ostler in city police court today on a morals charge.

Gerald Brooks admitted the offence, which occurred in Victoria in February, 1959. He was arrested in Port Alberni a week ago after receiving a one-year sentence there for theft over $50.

Two Heliport Sites 'Best In Canada'

Victoria has the two best sites for heliports in all of Canada, city finance committee was told today.

Dr. A. B. Nash, Victoria representative on the B.C. Aviation Council, said he had been informed by the federal department of transport that a suggested site in the industrial reserve "is the second best in all of Canada."

"And the best site is at Clover Point," he added.

The industrial reserve site suggested by the DOT lies between Esquimalt Road and the E & N Railway tracks south of a heliport site near Victoria West Park, approved by city council more than six years ago.

POLES IN WAY

The new site would require only removal of phone poles, some rock removal and a few renovations to make it "an ideal heliport," said Dr. Nash.

He said there appeared no likelihood of immediate use of a heliport here but the DOT strongly felt that the site should be secured before it becomes built up because Victoria was bound to have helicopter service sometime in the future.

Finance committee recommended that city council begin taking steps towards obtaining the proposed site.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Chip and Dip Bowl Set
A Forethoughtful Gift

By Penny Saver

Latest fad in casual party fare is the potato chip and dip. Except for the fact that guests often eat more chips than they ordinarily would, it is a fairly inexpensive and tasty way to feed a horde of droppers-in.

Thinking of the entertaining your about-to-be-married friends will discover themselves obliged to do, present them with a glass bowl set designed for such occasions.

Large bowl will hold satisfying pile of chips while smaller bowl attaches to side of larger and keeps chip dip handy. Both bowls can be used separately. Price for set is only $1.79.

Still thinking of their entertainment needs, why not give them an electric coffee percolator. One Penny saw in a drug store (of all places) will make two to nine cups of brew and sells for only $5.95, complete with cord. Tall and elegant in shining aluminum, it has a black handle and top.

Safety thermostat on heating device is in line with approved Canadian standards.

Pre-cut crystal serving dishes will delight the heart of any bride-to-be because they look so genuine. And they will delight your heart because they are so inexpensive!

Large serving plate, about 16 inches in diameter, is only $1.49. As is an almost equally large bowl.

Divided refresh dish in same pattern sells for 59 cents, while an individual one is 45 cents.

For the couple who will have an avid sailor in the family, a wall plaque featuring a three-dimensional, hand painted ceramic reproduction of the Bounty would be a "different" gift. Price is $2.35.

Call Penny at 382-3431 if these gift suggestions are of any help and you wish to know where they may be obtained.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Now That Summer's Here,
Arms Should Be In Shape

I am giving arms an unusual bend the elbows and touch amount of attention just now, the books to the shoulders, because they are getting an unusual straighten the arms out in unusual amount of exposure, front of you. Continue, bending and straightening the arms. Do this vigorously.

Even during the winter months, the sleeveless dress has been the vogue. Now that the upper arms are uncovered in regular clothes, play clothes and swim suits, women are aware of the condition of their arms.

Sometimes the problem is a heavy upper arm. If you are overweight, of course, a general loss in poundage will reduce the size. This is a difficult spot to reduce with exercise. The following is the best one I have found for this.

Stand tall. Raise the arms forward to shoulder height and shoulder width apart, palms facing. Now swing the arms down, and back as far behind you as possible, palms turned up. Swing the arms forward again, palms facing, and then continue.

The following exercise is helpful in reducing and firming. Stand tall and raise your arms overhead. Stretch toward the ceiling, all the way to your fingertips. Hold the stretch for a few moments. Relax and continue. The stretch is the thing! Now do the same exercise, but while stretching turn hands out briskly and then in briskly. Continue.

The flabby upper arm perhaps bothers women most of all. Do the following exercise. Sit on the edge of a chair with your back straight. Take a weight in each hand. You can use books for weight. The Mr. and Mrs. T. Richardson of books should be the same size. Nanaimo, and Mr. and Mrs. Palms are toward the ceiling. McPherson, the bride's parents.

Grey, White
Forms Bridal Ensemble

A knit suit in soft grey tone and white accessories were choice of Miss Sherron Helen McPherson when she exchanged vows with David William Ockenden in First United Church. Deep pink rosebuds were in her bouquet.

The bride, a 1962 graduate of the Royal Jubilee Hospital's school of nursing, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. B. McPherson, of Lindell Beach, Cultus Lake. Groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. H. Ockenden, 2436 Central Avenue.

Rev. A. I. Higgins officiated at the double ring ceremony. Peter Elliott was best man.

"Something old" was the wedding band that had been the ring of the bride's grandmother.

After a reception in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ferguson the newlyweds left on a honeymoon sailing trip.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Glenn McPherson, Vancouver; use books for weight. The Mr. and Mrs. T. Richardson of books should be the same size. Nanaimo, and Mr. and Mrs. Palms are toward the ceiling. McPherson, the bride's parents.

Leonard-Walsh Wedding
In St. Alban's Church

Pink rosebuds and white carnations decorated St. Alban's Anglican Church when Ellen Grace Walsh became the bride of Bernard Leonard Walsh with Rev. F. W. Hayes officiating.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Walsh, 1450 Myrtle Street, and John Thomas Leonard, Newcastle, Eng., and the late Mrs. Leonard.

Entering the church on her father's arm, the bride wore a ballerina-length gown of white lace that had a fitted bodice with scooped neckline and jilly-point sleeves. Full swirling skirt was accented at the waist with a large satin bow and streamers.

A coronet of seed pearls and orange blossom held the chapel-length veil of silk illusion net. Pink roses and stephanotis were in the bouquet.

Bell-skirted gowns of blush rose-organza over taffeta were chosen by maid of honor, Miss Patricia Salter and Mrs. R. Stenning, bridesmatron. Veilings: Kenmore.

Victoria's Flower 'Pots' In California

By PAT DUFOUR

Garden of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Seals in Temple City, on the outskirts of Los Angeles, is a "little bit of old Victoria. Here, on their fourth trip to Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Seals bring back...

Dufour

"Ours is the prettiest yard on the block. We've copied your hanging flower pots and the beds are full of flowers grown from seed we've had sent from Butchart Gardens."

The Seals arrived this time on Independence Day (Wednesday) and aren't the least bit put out at missing the Glorious Fourth. Says Mrs. Seals, "They've taken a lot of the bang out of it. The stores are only allowed to sell sparklers and squibs. The kids can't get rockets or real fireworks any more. It's just become the day you run the flag up."

Living close to Hollywood, they admit that their glimpses of movie stars is at a minimum. Grace Seals elaborates: "We hardly ever see one. I did see Marlene Dietrich at the Hollywood Bowl but without all her makeup I didn't recognize her."

'REAL DOLLS'

Her husband who is an area sales manager for an oil company, gets around a little more.

"My favorites are the girls who act as nurses on the Ben Casey show. They're real dolls and cute as buttons in their uniforms that are pale blue so that they will photograph a clear white."

What makes the Seals come to Canada repeatedly? "Guess it's mainly your streams and forests. At home we have to drive 360 miles to do a little trout fishing, and once schools are out we can't get near the water for children."

Mrs. Seals affirms that it's Canadians themselves that draw them back time and time again. "Your people are more friendly and treat us nice. Back home, everyone's out to make money. And the freeways! When we left New Jersey and came to California in 1932 I took one look at them and refused to drive any more."

One stop the Seals always make in Victoria is at the Princess Mary Restaurant. "The food's so darned good—it never changes—and, boys, the prices are really low."

Although they travel by car, as soon as they arrive at a city where they will stay, the car is parked and they take to taxis.

Before coming to Victoria, the Seals stopped off to see the World Fair in Seattle. As a matter of fact, they celebrated their 37th wedding anniversary there Sunday.

GRANDPARENTS

They have one daughter, Frances, who lives with her husband, Robert Culver, and their son, three-year-old Christopher, in Westminster, 30 miles from Temple City.

With no one at home, Mrs. Seals has gone back to business as an underwriter for a Los Angeles insurance company and confides that every third underwriter in their office is a woman.

Says her husband, with pride, "Women have more patience than men for the job."

Do they intend to come back again? "That's for sure!" he adds firmly. "When I retire in seven and a half years or sooner if I can make it, I'd like nothing better than to live in Canada."

Not that he intends to twiddle his thumbs in retirement. "We spent one holiday in Banff and that's where I'd like to settle. There's a lot of money to be made there."

How would he make his Canadian stay pay off? "I'd build a string of motels around Banff and tip heck out of the American tourists!"

Next week is a "big one" for members of 4-H junior farm clubs in all parts of B.C. Close to 100 of them will attend a conference at New Denver in the Kootenays from which 14 will be chosen for a trip to the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto in the fall. There are eight going to the conference from the Greater Victoria area, four of them from one Saanich club. The four are shown above, all members of the Saanich 4-H Jersey Calf Club under leadership of Mrs. Tom O'Reilly, Woodwynn Farm. The hard-working quartette are, from left: Pat Hoole, Joan Youell, John Stanlake and Bob Evans. (Times photo.)

MEDICARE

The provincial executive of Saskatchewan's Keep-Our-Doctors Committee passed a resolution early today saying the provincial government must be held accountable for any deaths resulting from the lack of medical attention.

The committee shelved plans for a motorcade to Regina this week but Rod Thomson of Prince Albert, spokesman for the group, said the possibility of holding a protest rally within 10 days in Regina will be discussed at future meetings.

Bert McKay, executive president of the committee, told a meeting of delegates that "we have lost the battle to a measure. In view of the fact that we have lost 30 doctors we will have to redouble our efforts," he said.

McKay's estimate of how many doctors had submitted to the new law was conservative in comparison to other reports.

Jack Kintzel, executive secretary of the Medical Care

MEDICARE

Insurance Commission, said it was his understanding that between "60 and 70" doctors were practicing under the medicare plan.

A fresh fight flared between the government and a group of radiologists and pathologists affected by an announcement last Saturday of extended out-patient diagnostic services.

Twenty-five representatives of the two groups at a Regina meeting demanded the government withdraw implementation of this service, which was to be provided under the Saskatchewan hospital services plan.

The groups said in a statement "we cannot accept this latest move of the government any more than we can accept the Medical Care Insurance Act—and for the same reason."

About the same time, Health Minister W. G. Davies announced the government is prepared to continue discussions with a joint committee set up several months ago to find the best way to handle out-patient services.

Famed Polio Fighter Raps Strike

Mr. Davis said it was emphasized that the services were extended only "to the extent they could be provided."

Meanwhile, comment continued to come in today from many quarters of the Saskatchewan dispute.

Dr. Albert Sabin of Pittsburgh, discovered of the oral polio vaccine, said the doctors' strike is "contrary to everything the practice of medicine stands for."

Dr. Sabin said "it seems to me the doctors are false to their profession when they refuse to take care of the sick."

He said he was "shocked to learn that some have died and others may die or suffer needlessly."

Carl B. French, immediate past president of the Canadian Cancer Society, said the strike is "very unfortunate. He said individuals should have the right to decide how they will approach their responsibilities, but added that in this case withdrawal of services would not solve the problem."

Dr. B. Breton, emergency medical co-ordinator, said the departing doctors just got tired and fed up and didn't see any future in continuing.

Dr. Breton declined to say exactly how many doctors were going except it was "more than two" or how many were remaining. But he did say this town of 12,000 had 18 doctors before the medical care strike began Sunday.

POLICE ALERTED

Police at various points along the Seaway route were requested by the Seaway Authority to take appropriate action to prevent any outbreaks of violence.

The only incident in the first hour of the boycott was reported at Welland, Ont., where police said telephone wires leading to a canal bridge had been ripped out. The broken lines connect bridges along the entire canal.

Douks Wooded Unions

(Compiled from CP)
VANCOUVER—A circular calling upon organized labor to unite with the Sons of Freedom Doukhobors to combat the "despotism" of the provincial government was read at the preliminary hearing of 70 Freedomites in New Westminster Wednesday.

The document, signed by persons identified in the circular as Doukhobor mothers, said the government would kidnap the children of workers just as they kidnapped Sons of Freedom children.

"They are holding our children as hostages (at New Denver school) in order to force us to give up our religion and way of life," the circular said.

The Doukhobor mother wants only to teach her children her traditional Russian language, the principles of pacifism and her religious beliefs," it continued. "But the government wants to destroy our way of life."

"Once they have done this, they will attack organized labor. They will kidnap your children. They want to return the workers to serfdom. We must unite to fight this cancerous, malignant despotism."

The hearing goes into its 19th day today before Nelson Magistrate William Evans. More than 400 documents have been entered in evidence.

MURDER CHARGE

VANCOUVER—Homicide detectives Wednesday charged a retired man with non-capital murder in the butcher-knife slaying of a city housewife.

John Devlin, 66, will appear in court later today.

He was arrested Tuesday after police found the body of Mrs. Gail Mildred Coppin, 51, in her living room.

STRIKES BRIDGE

VERNON (CP)—Department store manager Richard Travis of Merritt died early Wednesday from injuries suffered late Tuesday night when his truck smashed into a bridge on Kalamalka Lake. A passenger, Fred Portman, was released after observation in hospital.

SERVICE TO END?

TRAIL—The Canadian Pacific Railway has advised city council that it is seeking to abandon passenger services between Lethbridge and Spences Bridge, 125 miles northeast of Vancouver.

The CPR said it has prepared a brief to the Board of Transport Commissioners indicating "exceedingly severe losses" on the run.

The route passes through the interior communities of Fernie, Cranbrook, Creston, Nelson, Grand Forks, Penticton, Princeton and Merritt and joins the main-line at Spences Bridge.

COMPLAIN OF SKIERS

KAMLOOPS—The Lac le Jeune fishing lodge says its clients are being bothered by speed boats and water skiers. It has asked the Greater Kamloops Chamber of Commerce for help in controlling—and if necessary banning their activities on Lac le Jeune and other lakes in the area.

However, Goulart did not approve the strike and asked the labor leaders during a conference in the capital of Brasilia to call it off. They agreed to issue orders this afternoon cutting short the walkout.

Winnie's Pulse 'Irregular'

LONDON (AP) — A medical bulletin this afternoon said Sir Winston Churchill has developed "some irregularity of the pulse" at a hospital where he is recuperating from a thigh fracture.

This was the first indication of any setback in the 87-year-old former prime minister's recovery from his accident a week ago today.

The medical bulletin said, however, that "Sir Winston is comfortable and had a good night."

There is always some danger that men of his age and considerable weight will develop pneumonia or some other complication after broken bones.

The communique said Adenauer's visit would "further the development of links between the nations of Europe and thereby strengthen the whole Atlantic alliance."

Bank Rate Steady

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bank of Canada's treasury bill rate stood at 5.43 per cent, down slightly from 5.45 last week, the bank announced today following the weekly sale of 91-day government treasury bills.

'Laced' Orange Juice Charlie's Downfall

LONDON (AP) — Charlie Walther's anti-liquor crusade so peeved his fellow club members they laced his orange juice with a stiff shot of alcohol.

That was how, a court was told Wednesday, Walther came to be nabbed drunk at the wheel of his car.

Walther's lawyer said

He said the move was to bring B.C. into line with increased federal government interest rates.

There are $211,800,000 worth of parity bonds outstanding for Crown agencies.

The half-per-cent boost in interest will therefore cost just over $1,000,000 a year.

Mr. Bennett described as "completely false" reports that $20,000,000 worth of parity bonds had been cashed in by the public.

However, he admitted that some bonds have been turned in, and purchased by government agencies.

NONE REDEEMED

"Some people who need money have turned some in. But we have redeemed none," said the premier.

"They have been turned in to our own accounts and this is not embarrassing in any way."

He would not disclose the total, but said it was "just a fraction" of the reported $20,000,000.

Mr. Bennett said the parity bond interest boost was decided by the cabinet this morning.

He said it was based on interest rates charged for federal government treasury notes over the past two weeks.

Last week this federal rate was 5.45 per cent. Today it is 5.43 per cent.

"We must keep interest rates in line with federal treasury bills," he said. "This is the basic interest rate in Canada."

TREND ESTABLISHED

As the rate had remained high for two weeks in a row, it was clear a trend had been established, said the premier.

Asked if B.C. will make further changes if the federal rate goes up or down, Mr. Bennett said "we will watch federal treasury bills."

The new interest rate for parity bonds is effective today, said Mr. Bennett and will apply to any bond coupons due from this date.

He said the B.C. government recognizes Canada is in a period of higher rates, and must go along with it.

"This is one of the prices we're paying for this immature handling of our national affairs," he said, referring to federal government budget and trade account deficits.

The premier said in contrast B.C. had a budget surplus of $10,400,000 for the fiscal year ended last March 31.

FEDERAL HEALTH MINISTER

Waldo Monteith said today there is no constitutional way he can intervene in the dispute between the Saskatchewan government and doctors. He was replying to a telegram appeal from Mayor R. C. Saunders of Moosejaw.

MEET FRIDAY

Dentists To Study Position

REGINA (CP) — The Regina District Dental Society has invited Saskatchewan dentists to an open meeting here Friday to discuss the position of dentists following the start of Saskatchewan's medical care plan.

Dr. G. W. Schwann, outgoing president of the society, said today in an interview, we intend to bring all our members up to date so they know the facts about the new legislation.

He said legal counsel would be at the meeting to advise dentists how they stand under the Medical Care Insurance Act. The act does not cover normal dental care.

Dr. Schwann said that at present there is no possibility of dentists stopping practice.

"The feeling seems to be that dentists see no sense in penalizing the people by a walkout," he said. However, he said that in the case of the doctors he felt "they had been legislated out of business."

Dentists, he said, were not in the same position.

He expected dentists from many parts of the province to attend. Moose Jaw dentists voted Wednesday night to close their offices to attend the Regina meeting.

Dentists are not directly involved in the Medicare plan which went into effect and started the doctors' strike July 1, because it excludes provision of dentures, drugs and eyeglasses. But they are called on to perform duties such as jaw operations in accident and other emergency cases.

NEW TRY SET AT HIGH BLAST

HONOLULU (AP) — The United States is set for its third try at exploding a nuclear device high above Johnston Island tonight.

The U.S. weather bureau in Honolulu said skies should be clear and visibility good over the tiny Pacific island.

Two previous attempts at a high-altitude shot failed because of missile troubles.

Doctors Spread 'Very Thinly'

(Times News Services)

SASKATOON — The emergency-care situation in Saskatchewan is reaching a critical stage, Dr. Sam Landa, emergency co-ordinator for the Canadian Medical Association, said today.

He said available personnel are being spread "very thinly" across the province.

As of Wednesday 204 doctors were providing emergency care, a drop of 36 from July 1 when doctors in the province went on strike against the government's compulsory medical care insurance plan.

Four doctors left North Battleford today and moved to Alberta to take permanent jobs, Dr. Landa said in an interview.

However, he said doctors are still providing emergency care at 35 selected hospitals. But the number of hospitals providing emergency surgery has decreased since the start of the strike.

In Regina, Dr. Clayton Cross, co-ordinator for the emergency doctor service, said the number of doctors has dropped to 30 from the original 38 assigned to the city's two major hospitals.

"I don't know if we will have enough men to carry on another week," he said.

Key Men Arrange to Leave

Dr. Crosby added that several key men were making arrangements to leave the city.

Dr. Neville Smith, acting as a spokesman for some Regina doctors, said the roster of eight anaesthetists is likely to be reduced by half by the weekend.

He said several have received job offers from other places.

Dr. Crosby said it may be necessary by the weekend to have one four-member team of surgeons alternating between the General Hospital and the Grey Nuns Hospital. At present there is a four-member team at each hospital.

He expected Regina would be called upon for a larger volume of surgical work should the supply of surgeons at emergency centres in the southern part of Saskatchewan diminish.

Police were ordered to protect doctors and their families at Swift Current following threats by an organization calling itself the "Swift Current Citizens' Safety Committee."

Legislative Buildings Under Guard?

At Regina, Police Chief A. G. Cookson would neither confirm nor deny reports that police were closely guarding the legislative buildings in case of demonstrations.

Deputy Premier J. H. Brocklebank said the provincial government considers the medical care situation "apparently under control."

He said there "appears nothing in the nature of panic and alarm" and the general situation is "very quiet."

He made no forecast on how long the current emergency will last.

In Saskatoon, Dr. George W. Peacock, assistant to president H. D. Daigleish of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons, denied reports that the doctors' strike was buckling under a mounting tide of criticism.

"From where I sit it looks like it's stronger than ever," Dr. Peacock said.

He was commenting on a report by United Press International which stated "the pendulum has swung, and the great weight of public dissatisfaction now is being brought to bear upon the doctors."

Many physicians who shut down their offices four days ago in defiance of the province's new socialized medicine law apparently are ready to give up the struggle, the UPI report said.

Wild Gun Battle In Oran Streets

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

ALGERS (AP) — A violent gun battle in the heart of Oran, Algeria, shattered the European section of the city's celebration of its first official independence holiday.

More than 100 dead and wounded were reported in the first hour of the fighting, which swept the former stronghold of European Secret Army terrorists.

Two hours after the fighting started, machine-gun fire still raged over the city. French riot police cars set up positions near the battle area.

Stores Complain Of Tourist Grab

Sightseeing Operators Get Blame

Sightseeing operators, jockeying for advantage in The Causeway area, have cut off the tourist dollar "at the pass" and downtown merchants are angry.

That's the story city public works committee heard today when it decided to call a special joint meeting next week with all sightseeing operators, the city's special traffic committee and itself.

200-PLANE TOFINO FLY-IN MAY SET RECORD FOR B.C.

At least 200 owner/ flown planes are expected at a weekend fly-in at Tofino, on the west coast of Vancouver Island, Saturday and Sunday.

Indications are that it will be the largest fly-in ever held in British Columbia.

As precautionary measures, the RCAF Search and Rescue co-ordination centre in Vancouver will station a helicopter at Tofino from noon Saturday until the planes leave Sunday, and department of transport and RCMP have been alerted on a stand-by basis.

Light aircraft from both Canadian and American points of the Pacific Northwest will take part in the fly-in, organized this year by the International Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association.

City May Conduct Garage Hours Vote

City finance committee today recommended that council hold a secret ballot among operators to determine what closing hours they want, if any.

Recommendation came after independent dealer Alfred F. Kubicek presented a petition urging a bylaw to continue the "open" system under which council imposed no restrictions on hours.

He said the petition was signed by 52 of the 96 city service station operators.

Mayor R. B. Wilson pointed out that under recent legislation — unless city council passes an exemption bylaw — all service stations staying open beyond 3 p.m. are "technically breaking the law. This situation should be regularized."

Two Heliport Sites 'Best In Canada'

Victoria has the two best sites for heliports in all of Canada, city finance committee was told today.

Dr. A. B. Nash, Victoria representative on the B.C. Aviation Council, said he had been informed by the federal department of transport that a suggested site in the industrial reserve "is the second best in all of Canada."

West Coast Coho Yield Good Harvest

Commercial fishermen are cashing in on a "reasonably good" run of coho salmon off the west coast of Vancouver Island, a federal fisheries officer told the Times today.

The coho, which with spring salmon provide British Columbia's 2,000 trawlers with most of their take, average about five pounds at present. Growth increases rapidly through the summer months.

While fisheries men warn that it's early for any general prediction, they forecast an off-year for the Fraser River pinks.

They are also dubious about the important Adams River sockeye run, which may be reduced this year owing to unfavorable estuary conditions when the young fish were feeding their way through the lower reaches of the Fraser.

Among fishermen who scored from the early coho run were the crew of the weathership St. Catharines. On station 900 miles offshore from Victoria, they landed 300 salmon, four steelhead and 70 perch-like pomfret.

"Fishing has never been this good before," said Werner Frank, bosun's mate, when the weathership arrived home Monday from Station Poppa after her six-week trip. "Other times, we never caught more than eight salmon."

Three-Year Term On Morals Charge

A Port Alberni man was given a three-year jail term by Magistrate William Osler in city police court today on a morals charge.

Gerald Brooks, admitted the offence, which occurred in Victoria in February, 1959. He was arrested in Port Alberni a week ago after receiving a one-year sentence there for theft over $50.

ARTHUR MAYSE

A good grey editor now, with God told me some few years ago that the way to write anything is to jump into the middle and pull the ends in after. So here I sit in the middle, reviewing a love affair with Victoria that began on a sunny morning when I was a plump, untidy child in a sailor suit, dispatched by my grandmother with my grandfather on an errand of considerable urgency.

The plumbing in the little bungalow on Cambridge St., never too dependable, had let go in a bathroom geyser of spectacular proportions. There was no telephone.

"Take your foot in your hand," said grandma to grandpa—both of them Ontario-born, but Irish as the pigs of Dublin—"and fetch a plumber."

"Yes, my dear," said grandfather, a calm, bearded man. He lifted his hat off the front hall table. With his cane in one hand and me by the other, he set off with grandmother's "Hurry!" and the splashing of water to speed him.

We walked briskly half a block. Then, by degrees, the pace slackened. There were roses to be admired, a multitude of them. By one house with a particularly fine display, grandpa paused to discuss on roses. We moved on from there.

I was torn away from Victoria soon after, but home in bleak and bitter winter Manitoba I carried a dream of a city where roses bloomed and the winds blew southerly, where ice cream cones were larger and more flavoured than anywhere else, and people didn't hurry even with a burst pipe spraying a bathroom ceiling.

Some day, I told myself, I would go back to that lovely town.

I did, too, many times. From Vancouver on newspaper assignments, or on day trips with my girl. The magic was there and waiting; we always went home reluctantly.

Later, years after I coaxed that girl into matrimony and took her off to the tiger cities of the east, we'd get homesick for gorse and golden-broom, for the iodine tang of the help beds, for roses and the dapple of sunlight on blue tidewater. At such times we would cross the country at selfish inconvenience and expense for a few days in Victoria. We acquired children and brought them with us. They agreed the ice cream cones were larger here, and wanted to stay.

Suddenly—the four of us lining the rail of a Vancouver-bound steamer—we decided that to stay would be an excellent idea.

"You write a serial this winter," Wm told me. "Sell it, and we'll move in the spring."

I did, and we did. That was 11 years ago. We know, now, that the ice cream cones aren't really all that much larger, and that Victoria's roses have their thorns. But never for a day or a minute have we regretted our decision.

And that, I believe, pulls in the ends. I've written a column of sorts, and hope to do so hereafter on the days when my friend Monte Roberts isn't.

Something has happened to that dashing young reporter, by the way. He's greyer around the muzzle than the colleague I remember from the years when we helped keep The Vancouver Daily Providence afloat.

But so, Monte tells me, am I!

TOPICS OF THE DAY

City fireman Robert Christenson suffered minor face burns while answering a fire call at 512 Rithet Street shortly after midnight.

Fireman Christenson was checking a badly smoking oil heater when it blew back. He was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital and released.

Well-known Bishop Strachan Chapel Choir from Toronto will present a concert at 12:30 p.m. Friday at Victoria College. The 48-voice choir later will give a concert in Butchart Gardens.

Four cases have been scheduled for the fall jury sittings opening Oct. 1.

Charged are: Stephen Cassidy, rape; William Stefanson, breaking, entering and theft; Keith Stirling, uttering; Peter Chong (alias Wing Ming alias Ming Chong) attempted forgery.

Invitations to the Centennial Celebrations Ball July 27 were sent out to about 2,000 people today. Officials urged those who do not receive invitations, but who would like to attend, to make reservations at the Centennial Office, EV 6-1445, as soon as possible.

A new type of parking restriction was recommended today by city works committee to eliminate all-day parking in zones limited to two hours.

The new category would be "residential parking only."

It would be used on residential streets which now have no parking restrictions, and on streets where residents have complaints from home owners.

The problem arises where a non-resident parks his car in such zones, goes to work and returns every two hours to move the vehicle a couple of feet.

City finance committee today recommended that the city buy three lots, which it sold for $150 in 1945, at their present valuation of $15,000 for use in creating a cloverleaf at the proposed intersection of Blanshard and Finlayson which will be built to service the planned Mayfair Shopping Centre. Committee was told that the city should be able to recover the cost by selling an unneeded portion of the property when the roadwork is completed.

CHECKING FORM for the four-day teen-age drivers' Roadco, starting in Victoria today are these four provincial finalists. Steering the bucket and making the hand signal is George

Canada-Wide Roadco Final Starts Here

Twelve teen-age drivers from seven provinces arrived in Victoria Wednesday night for the national finals of the annual teen-age safe-driving roadco sponsored by Junior Chamber of Commerce across the country.

A four-day hitch, the finals involve road and skill tests, a written examination covering safe-driving knowledge, a psycho-physical examination testing reaction and perception under simulated driving conditions, a personal interview to assess general attitude and personal characteristics, and an aptitude scale to measure attitude toward safe driving conditions.

The written examinations began this morning after a briefing in the Empress Hotel.

REAL THING SATURDAY Friday is the day for psycho-physical tests, aptitude scale test, personal interview and road check.

Saturday comes the all-important skill test—handling cars in confined quarters over designated tracks—preceded by a briefing session.

It is to be held at the Esquimalt Sports Centre parking lot at 2:30.

Awards are to be presented Sunday at a banquet in the Empress.

Not that it's all work. These dozen are the cream of over 30,000 teen-agers who took part in local and provincial competitions across the country in the last few months, and the host Victoria Jaycees are pulling out all the stops.

Today there was a luncheon at the Princess Mary restaurant vessel, a navel tour, and tonight a civic reception and dinner, and a social evening.

BEACH PARTY Friday, the teen-agers will go swimming at the Crystal Garden, going on to a beach party and barbecue at Point No Point in the evening.

A parade, dinner and dance are slated for Saturday, and a tour of the city is arranged for Sunday before the awards banquet in the evening.

Norm Walters of the Halifax Junior chamber of commerce will be chief judge of the roadco, assisted by Inspector Brooke Douglas of Victoria city police traffic division.

Bryan Holliday is chairman of the roadco committee for the local Junior chamber of commerce.

The navy's salute, which will include activities at sea, on land, and in the air, will continue through Aug. 11.

CENTENNIAL WEEK

Downtown Mall Plan For Festival Fun

A Centennial Mall will be constructed in Broad Street between Fort and Broughton as a focal point for displays and entertainment during centennial week, July 28 to August 4, it was announced today.

At one end of the street, which will be blocked off, a stage will be erected with a runway for a fashion parade. In front of the stage will be a continental-style outdoor restaurant.

On Saturday, July 28, the theme in the mall will be the Gay Nineties to start the celebrations. Highland dancing and a massed pipe band exhibition is planned in the evening for this day, also the date of the Highland Games, in Athletic Park.

JOINT SERVICES Sunday will see interdenominational services in the park, while Monday will feature visiting dignitaries from other communities.

The mall will be the scene of a fashion show from 2 to 4 p.m. on Tuesday. Women also will provide pre-pageant entertainment at the park in the evening.

On the Wednesday Indian dances and gymnastic displays will be featured at the mall from 2 to 5 p.m. At the park in the evening, a junior symphony concert will be given.

SURPRISE PARTY On Thursday, Victoria's birthday, there will be a surprise party at City Hall from 8 to 9 a.m., a sunset ceremony before the pageant in the park in the evening, and a bonfire at Clover point at 11 p.m.

Japanese, Chinese and Indian dancing will take place at the mall between 2 and 5 p.m. on Friday. Scandinavian groups will appear at the park before the pageant.

Service clubs will take over both mall and park on the last day of the celebrations. Fireworks will conclude the pageant each night.

QUEEN CONTEST LEADERS NAMED

Leader so far in the race of would-be queens for the centennial crown is Carol Ann Howay, 20, sponsored by the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Centennial Society officials announced today.

Since June 26, sponsors of 43 candidates in the queen contest have been selling tickets to the centennial pageant, to run in the Athletic Park July 28 to August 4, at reduced prices. For every ticket they sell, they receive 1,000 votes toward the centennial crown.

For those ticket stubs turned into centennial headquarters before Tuesday, the candidates received a 25 per cent vote bonus. In addition, they received a 5 per cent bonus before each of the three official counting days left, July 10, 17 and 24 when the contest ends.

The candidate who has gained the most votes by this time will be declared centennial queen and will feature in the pageant. In addition she will win an all-expenses paid trip to Hawaii for two. Ten runners-up also will be named at this time.

Centennial office released names of the contestants categorized into five groups according to the number of votes they obtained at the first count. Names in the first four are:

Category 1: Carol Ann Howay, Jane Bowring, Brenda Lassila, Pat Conrad.

AERO-BOAT was put into service today for weed control spraying program at Beaver Lake swimming beaches. In the boat are Henry Carner, Tacoma, a specialist in the field,

Winnie's
Pulse
'Irregular'

LONDON (AP) — A medical bulletin this afternoon said Sir Winston Churchill has developed "some irregularity of the pulse" at a hospital where he is recuperating from a thigh fracture.

This was the first indication of any setback in the 87-year-old former prime minister's recovery from his accident a week ago today.

The medical bulletin said, however, that "Sir Winston is comfortable and had a good night."

'Let Me Stay,' Soblen Asks U.K.

LONDON (AP) — Convicted Soviet spy Dr. Robert Soblen, who fled from a life sentence in the United States, appealed to the British government today to let him stay here, at least temporarily.

Prime Minister Macmillan was asked in a telegram from Soblen's lawyer in Israel to hold up the injured spy's return to the U.S.

IN SASKATCHEWAN

New Crisis Faces
Emergency Care

(Times News Services)

SASKATOON — The emergency care situation in Saskatchewan is reaching a critical stage, Dr. Sam Landa, emergency co-ordinator for the Canadian Medical Association, said today.

He said available personnel are still providing emergency care at 35 selected hospitals, but the number of hospitals providing emergency surgery has decreased since the start of the strike.

As of Wednesday 204 doctors were providing emergency care, a drop of 36 from July 1 when doctors in the province went on strike against the government's compulsory medical care insurance plan.

Four doctors left North Battleford today and moved to Alberta to take permanent jobs, Dr. Landa said in an interview. However, he said doctors

Key Men Arrange to Leave

Dr. Crosby added that several key men were making arrangements to leave the city.

Dr. Neville Smith, acting as a spokesman for some Regina doctors, said the roster of eight anaesthetists is likely to be reduced by half by the weekend.

He said several have received job offers from other places.

Dr. Crosby said it may be necessary by the weekend to have one four-member team of surgeons alternating between the General Hospital and the Grey Nuns Hospital. At present there is a four-member team at each hospital.

He expected Regina would be called upon for a larger volume of surgical work should the supply of surgeons at emergency centres in the southern part of Saskatchewan diminish.

Dr. Crosby said that following threats by an organization calling itself the "Swift Current Citizens' Safety Committee," Mayor Dahl said there were 17 doctors in Swift Current but only seven now were providing emergency service.

Legislative Buildings Under Guard?

At Regina, Police Chief A. G. Cookson would neither confirm nor deny reports that police were closely guarding the legislative buildings in case of demonstrations.

Deputy Premier J. H. Brocklebank said the provincial government considers the medical care situation "apparently under control."

In Saskatoon, Dr. George W. Pearce, assistant to president H. D. Dalgleish of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons, denied reports that the doctors' strike was building under a mounting tide of criticism.

"From where I sit it looks like it's stronger than ever," Dr. Pearce said.

He was commenting on a report by United Press International which stated "the pendulum has swung, and the great weight of public dissatisfaction now is being brought to bear upon the doctors."

SHIPS BARRED FROM LOCKS

SIU Boycotted in Canals

OTTAWA (CP) — Union Railway, Transport and General workers (CLC), handled SIU ships which were in the waterways when the boycott went into effect. But they were reported to be refusing to allow any SIU vessels to enter either the Welland Canal or the St. Lawrence River canals.

The boycott began at 8 a.m. EDT in retaliation against a campaign of "intimidation, harassment and coercion" in Canadian labor history.

"From all reports so far, the peaceful boycott is 100 per cent effective against SIU-managed ships," said William Dodge, executive vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress.

"All other vessels are moving freely in the waterways," he said. The lock crews, members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Meanwhile, Transport Minister Baer met with Prime Minister Diefenbaker to consider the boycott situation.

In announcing the boycott, the CLC laid down three conditions for ending it. They called for an end to violence on the lakes, a cessation of harassment and boycotts against non-SIU ships in United States ports, and assurance from the government that an inquiry will be launched into SIU affairs.

In the wake of the boycott, it was learned in Montreal that the SIU had signed new two-year agreements with seven major shipping companies, including some of the biggest in the Canadian inland marine fleet.

The contracts covered more than 200,000 tons of cargo. Continued on Page 24

MEET FRIDAY

Dentists
To Study
Position

REGINA (CP) — The Regina District Dental Society has invited Saskatchewan dentists to an open meeting here Friday to discuss the position of dentists following the start of Saskatchewan's medical care plan.

Dr. G. W. Schwann, outgoing president of the society, said today in an interview, "we intend to bring all our members up to date so they know the facts about the new legislation."

He said legal counsel would be at the meeting to advise dentists how they stand under the Medical Care Insurance Act. The act does not cover normal dental care.

Dr. Schwann said that at present there is no possibility of dentists stopping practice. "The feeling seems to be that dentists see no sense in penalizing the people by a walkout," he said. However, he said that in the case of the doctors he felt "they had been legislated out of business."

Dentists, he said, were not in the same position.

He expected dentists from many parts of the province to attend. Moose Jaw dentists voted Wednesday night to close their offices to attend the Regina meeting.

Dentists are not directly involved in the Medicare plan which went into effect and started the doctors' strike July 1, because it excludes provision of dentures, drugs and eyeglasses. But they are called on to perform duties such as jaw operations in accident and other emergency cases.

To Match Yield
Set by Ottawa

Premier Bennett today boosted the interest rate on B.C. parity bonds from 5 to 5 1/2 per cent.

He said the move was to bring B.C. into line with increased federal government interest rates.

There are $241,800,000 worth of parity bonds outstanding for Crown agencies.

The half-per-cent boost in interest will therefore cost just over $1,000,000 a year.

Mr. Bennett described as "completely false" reports that $60,000,000 worth of parity bonds had been cashed in by the public.

However, he admitted that some bonds have been turned in, and purchased by government agencies.

NONE REDEEMED
"Some people who need money have turned some in. But we have redeemed none," said the premier.

"They have been turned in to our own accounts and this is not embarrassing in any way."

He would not disclose the total, but said it was "just a fraction" of the reported $60,000,000.

Mr. Bennett said the parity bond interest boost was decided by the cabinet this morning.

He said it was based on interest rates charged for federal government treasury notes over the past two weeks.

Last week this federal rate was 5.45 per cent. Today it is 5.43 per cent.

"We must keep interest rates in line with federal treasury bills," he said. "This is the basic interest rate in Canada."

TREND ESTABLISHED
As the rate had remained high for two weeks in a row, it was clear a trend had been established, said the premier.

Asked if B.C. will make further changes if the federal rate goes up or down, Mr. Bennett said "we will watch federal treasury bills."

"The new interest rate" for parity bonds is effective today, said Mr. Bennett and will apply to any bond-coupons due from this date.

He said the B.C. government recognizes Canada is in a period of higher rates, and must go along with it.

"This is one of the prices we're paying for this immature handling of our national affairs," he said, referring to federal government budget and trade account deficits.

The premier said in contrast B.C. had a budget surplus of $10,400,000 for the fiscal year ended last March 31.

Its four Crown agencies combined: the PGE Railway, Toll Authority, B.C. Electric and B.C. Power Commission had a clear profit of over $20,000,000 at that date, he added.

Mr. Bennett said a summer financial report giving a detailed breakdown of these figures will be issued shortly.

PIPEDREAM
Mr. Bennett also dismissed as "a pipedream" newspaper stories that financial institutions would be asked to provide further provincial credit.

He said if the stories had been made definite he would have liked to sue the reporter who wrote them.

The premier also said the government has not yet used the cabinet authority granted last Tuesday to float up to $25,000,000 in short-term treasury bills.

"Not one nickel has been borrowed," he said. "It was just passed in case we needed it because we are coming to heavy months ahead with highway paving and the home owner grants."

'Laced' Orange Juice Charlie's Downfall

LONDON (AP) Charlie Walther's anti-liquor crusade so peeved his fellow club members they laced his orange juice with a stiff shot of alcohol.

That was how, a court was told Wednesday, Walther came to be nabbed drunk at the wheel of his car.

Walther's lawyer said

Charlie's zealous anti-drink campaign had annoyed other members of a political club in suburban Sydney. One night when he temporarily left the clubroom someone poured booze into his soft drink.

The shot sent Walther to pieces, the lawyer said.

The judge fined Walther 20 guineas ($58.80).

Germany, France In Accord

PARIS (Reuters)—President de Gaulle and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said today they want to bring talks on a European political union to a conclusion as soon as possible "in agreement with their partners."

A communique issued after their three private meetings here during Adenauer's week-long visit said they agreed fully on German and Berlin questions and hoped Britain's application to enter the European Common Market would be solved "in a way that would strengthen the structure of Europe."

The communique said Adenauer's visit would "further the development of links between the nations of Europe and thereby strengthen the whole Atlantic alliance."

VETERAN U.S. DIPLOMAT Foy Kohler has been named by President Kennedy as new ambassador to Russia, succeeding Llewellyn Thompson who will be given a new assignment. Kohler now is assistant secretary of state for European affairs.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions to select to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answers each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Paul Moore, 14, Brookfield, Wis., for his question:

How Fast Does a Stone Fall?

A few weeks ago, Andy was explaining the word gravity was used as a measuring unit. He mentioned the 'speed' of falling bodies and one of the items he reported was quite wrong. Andy made a boo-boo. Many kind readers wrote to point out the error. But the mistake must be corrected at once, or some young space traveler may plan his orbit based on the wrong figures.

A falling stone speeds up as it approaches the ground and this special kind of speed-up is called acceleration. A falling body gathers speed and at almost every point of the journey downward, it is traveling at a different rate. What's more, there are other factors in this already complicated picture.

A stone falling from 100 feet has a greater distance in which to gather speed than a stone falling from 50 feet. The air, which seems like a filmy nothing, resists a falling body and causes it to slow down. This air resistance is strong enough to cancel out the acceleration speed of an object falling from a very great height, say, out of an airplane.

These various factors make a difference to the speed of a falling body and we have to take them into consideration when plotting the path. Since a stone may fall from a high or low position, through a thick or thinner layer of air, the falling speed will be different in almost every case—and it will certainly be different at various points on the downward journey. However, we can take a standard unit to get a rough estimate of the speed of a falling stone.

Energy Same In All Cases

This standard unit is the energy of the earth exerted on falling bodies. This pulling energy is the same in all cases and in theory, a feather should fall as fast as a stone.

When it does not do this, it has been delayed by air resistance. In a vacuum, where there is no air at all, both feather and stone do fall at the same speed.

The stone or feather starts its fall from speed zero and at the end of one second it has gathered enough speed to be traveling at the rate of 32 feet a second. This does not mean that it travels 32 feet in the first second. Remember that on falling bodies, this pulling energy is the same in all cases and in theory, a feather should fall as fast as a stone.

it started with no speed at all so actually it travels at less than this distance. In the next second it keeps speeding up and at the end of this second it is traveling at 64 feet a second. At the end of the third second it is speeding at 96 feet a second.

Please forgive Andy for reporting that a falling body drops 32 feet in the first second. He hopes you have not used this misinformation to plot a trajectory down from orbit.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—The European crowd thinks that Liz Taylor tossed away her whole career when she did that bareback scene on a boat with Richard Burton—which was shot by some sneaky but gifted photographer in Ischia. The photo's who caught Liz with her top down claims he has others more daring—and movie experts are saying, "Liz can't get by with THIS!" (Liz wound up her major scenes finally: from now on, she's just around as Dickie's fan club president.)

Yves Montand, onetime beau of Marilyn Monroe, and wife Simone Signoret are spitting and there are divorce rumors. But their intimates say: "Nothing will happen. It's just like Dickie and Sibyl!" A chap accosted bearded playwright Paddy Chayefsky on Fire Island and wanted to arrest him, claiming he resembled one of the nation's Most Wanted 10. "What would a criminal be doing on Fire Island?" retorted Paddy. "...and went his way free and unfettered."

Sure, Sophia Loren's husband, Carlo Ponti, is a little older, but what a delightful guy! He charmed everybody at the big Four Seasons soiree after the opening of "Boccaccio 70" and you understood why Sophia goes for him instead of some young, handsome dillard.

Joe E. Lewis flashes from Las Vegas: "Show me a girl who's always on her toes and I'll show you a very tired ballerina."

"Is Jackie Gleason as great an all-around entertainer as Sammy Davis Jr.?" Is Jerry Lewis... does Jack Paar belong in the Show Biz Hall of Fame? These are questions we're still trying to decide as we count the ballots in the contest we started months ago.

What happens when we get into our three-dollars? As somebody said about columnist, "Wind up the columnist doll—and it goes nuts."

Eartha Kitt was singing pleasantly, so she thought, at the Plaza Persian Room when Plato Skouras, Spyros' son dozed off. "Sorry I'm keeping you up," Eartha said. Next day came a rose and a note, "Awake or asleep, I think you're the greatest singer."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL... Jason Robards, who turns down lucrative TV offers, did a commercial for the N.Y. Mets—free 'cause he's a baseball fan! Astronaut John Glenn and his family saw "No Strings," visited the cast backstage.

Beverly Aadland's ma, Florence, was asked to do an advice-to-the-lovelorn column for a magazine... Linda Darnell is off to a Madrid cafe engagement... Judy Holliday went on a crash diet to lose weight before her TV Guide Award appearance.

Gina Lollobrigida has her horse, Roma, up for sale—$1,125... Betty Johnson's quickie bit in "Advise and Consent"—coming out of Peter Lawford's bedroom—got her more film roles.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: "We held a monthly meeting of our club," writes Nonnee Coan, "and after hearing the financial report, we also held the treasurer."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: At today's prices, it looks like the nickel has gone the way of the other buffaloes. Bellefontaine (OJ Examiner).

EARL'S PEARLS: Advice to wives: When your husband talks about your beauty, make sure he isn't reminiscing.

Today's TV shows, says Jim Backus of "Talent Scouts," are usually skin-diving, the roaring '20s or westerns: "Either flippers, flappers or giddyappers."... That's earl, brother.
